MOSCOW TRIAL SENTENCES FORESHADOWED

ALLEGED PLOT ON HITLER'S LIFE

MAN ARRESTED ON SUSPICION

Berlin, Apr. 17.
A man named Paul Orlovsky has been arrested by the police at Berchtesgaden in Bavaria, where Hitler is spending the Easter, on suspicion of preparing an attempt on the life of Hitler.
The police declare that Orlovsky was found behaving suspiciously and possessed forged Nazi Party papers, a forged passport, a loaded revolver and "narcotics."—Reuter.

SILVER INFLATION

U.S. COINAGE PLAN REJECTED

SMALL MAJORITY IN SENATE

Washington, Apr. 17.
After a keen debate suggesting that the Senate is becoming less docile to Presidential views, the Senate to-day rejected a proposal for the free coinage of silver at a ratio of sixteen to one with gold.
The proposal was expressly disapproved by President Roosevelt, but the majority in favour of rejection of the proposal was only 43 to 33.

Senator Robinson informed the Senate that President Roosevelt did not desire the proposal to go through pending the introduction of silver inflation legislation.
Senator Robinson also announced that President Roosevelt wanted all inflation amendments to the Farm Bill defeated.—Reuter.

NEW CUSTOMS REGULATIONS

OPERATION DELAYED TO JANUARY 1

(Special to "Telegraph")

(Telegraph Copyright. Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1931. Received, April 18, 8.55 a.m.)

Shanghai, Apr. 18.
An official announcement was made yesterday of the postponement from August 1, 1933, to January 1, 1934, of the enforcement of the new Customs regulations requiring the name of this country of origin to be plainly shown in Chinese characters on each piece of articles imported into China.

No reason is given for the postponement, but it has followed an intensive campaign against the new regulations by the Shanghai American Chamber of Commerce.—Reuter.

CANADIAN PREMIER FOR WASHINGTON

TO MEET ROOSEVELT AND MACDONALD

Ottawa, April 17.
It is officially announced that Mr. R. B. Bennett, the Canadian Premier, will leave for Washington April 24, in connection with the meeting between President Roosevelt and Mr. Ramsay MacDonald.

He will stay for two days at the Canadian legation and two days at the White House as the guest of President Roosevelt before returning to Ottawa on April 28.

At the Criminal Session this morning before Mr. Justice Liddell (Pulse Judge) Hung Ping-wo was sentenced to two years' hard labour for robbing a Chinese of $60 in money on March 27. He pleaded guilty.

GUILTY VERDICT INEVITABLE

GAOL SENTENCES MAY BE COMMUTED

DEFENCE SPEECHES

MOSCOW, APRIL 17.

A VERDICT OF GUILTY AGAINST ALL THE BRITISH ENGINEERS ACCUSED IN THE MOSCOW SABOTAGE AND ESPIONAGE TRIAL, WITH THE POSSIBLE EXCEPTION OF GREGORY, IS A FOREGONE CONCLUSION.

It is understood that the sentences will possibly be as follows:

Mr. Alan Monkhouse, three years' imprisonment.
Mr. Charles Thornton, ten years' imprisonment.
Mr. William MacDonald, ten years' imprisonment.
Mr. John Cushny, bound over and released.
Mr. Charles Nordwall, bound over and released.

It is considered likely that Guseff and Lobanoff will be sentenced to death and that the other Russians will receive varying terms of imprisonment.

It is also considered possible that the sentences upon Messrs. Monkhouse, Thornton, and MacDonald may be commuted to exile.

SMIRNOFF'S PLEA FOR MACDONALD

M. Vishinsky discussing the breakdowns at electrical stations at which the accused are claimed by the prosecution to have been guilty of machine-wrecking, endeavoured to show that the breakdowns must have been intentional and then said it would be necessary to take into account that "we have before us such facts as the confessions of some of the accused."

He dwelt upon the importance of confessions in general, discussing the legislation of different countries in this respect and stated that "in England, confession obviates the necessity of proving the charges."

Proof in the present case had been so irrefutable that their attitude to only one person had changed since the indictment was laid.

WHITE PAPERS.

Referring to the British Government's White Papers, M. Vishinsky stated that Monkhouse, in endeavouring to discredit the preliminary examination and the Court, was following the line of exhibit No. 27 the first White Paper.

The Court, he said, would do a great service to humanity if it showed British public opinion the way in which it had been so cruelly hoodwinked.

He said the first liar in the campaign of mobilising British public opinion was probably Monkhouse. He reminded Monkhouse that it was no use suggesting that the firm of Metropolitan Vickers was sitting in the dock. Monkhouse was personally responsible so far as the court was concerned.

At the resumption of the trial this evening, M. Kaznachieff, counsel for the Russian accused, Guseff, Sokoloff and Oleinik, tried to throw the whole blame for the "conspiracy" on to the British engineers charged.

He contended that as the Russians had freely confessed to the crimes, their penalty should be less.

SECOND-RATE SABOTAGEUR.

M. Kaznachieff urged that Sokoloff was "only a second-rate sabotageur," and that quite sufficient punishment for his offences would be ten years' imprisonment.

He also expressed the hope that Oleinik would be given a chance to reform and to work for the Soviet.

M. Schwartz, counsel for the three Russian accused, Zorin, Krascheninikoff and Sukharoutchik, pleaded that the last-named had admittedly committed serious crimes against the State, but his environment was against him, he was surrounded by men of anti-Soviet persuasion and sabotageurs.

WITHOUT CONVICTION.

Krascheninikoff, he pointed out, had confessed very remorsefully. Counsel for the Russian accused appeared to be speaking without conviction and the court was very inattentive. People were coughing and shuffling their feet while the speeches were being delivered, occasionally laughing.

M. Schwartz concluded by pleading with the Judges not to wreak their vengeance on the accused, but to spare the lives of his clients.

Counsel for Lobanoff, Lebedeff and Sibert, blamed Nordwall for teaching his clients to spy and he appealed to the Court to consider their youth.

MACDONALD'S COUNSEL.

M. Smirnoff, counsel for the accused MacDonald, who pleaded guilty originally, retracted his plea and then admitted various offences, greatly impressed the Court.

He pointed out that MacDonald was of humble birth and a cripple. He came to Russia ignorant of the country and met "the terrible Guseff" who was quite prepared to sell his country for few hundred roubles.

MacDonald, he said, had been taught to uphold the honour and interests of his firm and was told to collect information and did so.

It was unjust, he declared, to class the underling MacDonald

U.S. ARMS EMBARGO POWERS

PRESIDENT GIVEN AUTHORITY

Washington, Apr. 17.
A Bill passed in the House of Representatives authorises the President to forbid the shipment of arms and ammunition from the United States to either or any belligerents anywhere in the world in "co-operation with such governments as the President deems necessary."

The penalty for violation of the law is a fine of $10,000 and two years' imprisonment.—Reuter.

FRED TERRY DIES

YOUNGEST OF A FAMOUS FAMILY

VETERAN ACTOR

London, April 17.
Theatricals has lost one of its most striking and best-known personalities in the death of Fred Terry, the veteran actor, which occurred to-day.

The late Mr. Terry, who was the youngest of the famous Terry theatrical was born in London, and first walked on to the stage at the opening of the Haymarket Theatre under the Bancroft regime in 1880, at the age of 15. Thereafter his name became a household word, and he acted in almost every town of importance in the United Kingdom, the United States and Canada.

He married Julia Nollson and had one son and one daughter. His interests went much beyond the stage, the actor being particularly keen on all sports and recreations such as golfing, boating, cycling and racing.—Reuter.

with Monkhouse and Thornton when the Court was deciding upon their verdict.

MacDonald had committed a serious crime, but he had given his word of honour never to repeat it.

M. Smirnoff concluded by hoping that MacDonald would be used.

VILLA SUFFER ECLIPSE

HOPE OF OVERTAKING ARSENAL GOING

SMART FULHAM VICTORY

London, Apr. 17.
Aston Villa, the only challengers to the Arsenal for the league championship, conceded two very important points at Newcastle where they were beaten by three goals to one.

This means that the London team now require but two points from their remaining three matches to assure themselves of the honours which they last won in 1931.

The Easter Monday programme contained little in the way of surprises. Leeds accomplished a smart performance in defeating Everton at Goodison Park and Middlesbrough jumped out of the direct relegation zone by beating the Wolves.

The Spurs did well to take a point from Plymouth, while Fulham brilliantly won at Preston.

Brantford, Exeter, Norwich and Reading all won in the third division, whereas Chester lost valuable ground to Rochdale and allowed Hull to take a useful lead.

The results, as cabled by Reuter, were:

LUAN RIVER BATTLE STORY

REARGUARD ACTIONS

THOUSAND MEN KILLED LAST NIGHT

RIVER CROSSING COVERED

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT)

(Telegraph Copyright. Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1931. Received, April 18, 10 a.m.)

Peking, Apr. 18.
After fighting desperate rearguard actions, Chinese official reports state that the main Chinese forces are now concentrated to the west of the Lan (or Luan) River and are now constructing defence works on the right bank.

The Chinese losses in the fighting along the Lan River last night alone are officially given as thirty-five officers and more than a thousand men killed.

Stout resistance was offered by the forces covering the retreat and heavy losses were inflicted on the invaders.

Latest Chinese reports state that Japanese aeroplanes flew over Luanchow and dropped bombs, killing one officer and six soldiers.

LUAN HO BATTLE.

Chinese despatches give graphic details of attempts by the Japanese to cross the Luan Ho and their repulse with heavy losses until strong Japanese artillery positions were established on the east bank and subjected the Chinese defenders to an intensive bombardment.

The Chinese claim that they inflicted well over a thousand casualties on the attackers before the river was crossed in two days of fighting.

Yesterday, Japanese aeroplanes bombed Fulung, Luanchow, and Funging.

CHANGLI RAID.

Changli and the railway station were occupied by the Japanese yesterday in a swift raid, and the station master was arrested.

Later in the afternoon, the Japanese continued their advance to the south of Changli.

In the Fulung situation, the Chinese claim to be making a stand with success.

The railway stations west of the Luan Ho are in complete confusion as a result of the influx of thousands of refugees.

RAIN'S BAN ON BASEBALL

NO PLAY IN NATIONAL LEAGUE

New York, April 17.
Rain came again to ruin the baseball programme in the National League to-day, not one of the three matches being played.

In the American League, Detroit hammered the Chicago pitchers to score eight runs in response to the latter's five, whilst St. Louis just nosed out Cleveland by the odd run in seven.

SCOTSBORO CASE

"A FAIR TRIAL IMPOSSIBLE"

JUDGE ORDERS POSTPONEMENT

(Special to "Telegraph")

(Telegraph Copyright. Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1931. Received, April 18, 11.15 a.m.)

New York, Apr. 17.

The trial at Decatur, Alabama, of Charlie Weems, the second of seven negroes who are being re-tried after being sentenced to death for an assault upon two white women at Scotsboro has been indefinitely postponed.

The Judge declared that local bitterness against the chief counsel for the defence, owing to his alleged aspersions on local citizens made a fair trial impossible at the present time.

The Judge suspended the death sentence on Patterson, the first negro to be sentenced to death, pending an appeal.

TWO YEARS' CASE.

The Scotsboro case has attracted widespread interest. Originally heard in 1931 it has been dragging on ever since. The retrial of Patterson commenced in November last and ended on April 9 with the passing of the death sentence once again.

The verdict was followed by a mass negro demonstration in New York when disturbances lasted for two hours.—Reuter.

ARMED KIDNAPPER SENTENCED

Seven Years in Dr. Wong Seizure Case

"On your own confession you are a member of an armed kidnapping gang, the type of scoundrel this Colony intends strongly to suppress was the remark of Mr. Justice Lindall (Pulse Judge), at the Criminal Sessions this morning when sentencing Li Hing to seven years' imprisonment with hard labour. Li pleaded guilty to robbery by two or more and forcibly taking Dr. Wong Cheung-lam with intent to procure a ransom at Shamshulpo on March 10.

Prisoner was charged with robbery in which a purse containing $76, a gold watch and a bundle of keys were stolen for which offence he received three years' hard labour, and forcibly taking a person with intent to procure a ransom on which charge he was sentenced to a further four years.

PRACTICAL RECIPES.

Five Ways of Making Pancakes.

Gingerbread Pancakes.—Two cupsful flour, ½ teaspoonful syrup, ½ teaspoonful sour milk, 2 table-spoonfuls butter, 1 egg, 1 tea-spoonful ginger, 1 teaspoonful cinnamon, ½ teaspoonful salt. Sift the flour, ginger, cinnamon, and salt. Melt the syrup and the butter, and stir in the baking soda. Add the beaten egg and the milk, and mix thoroughly. Stir in the dry ingredients, and beat till the batter is smooth. Melt a rounded tea-spoonful of fresh butter in a clean frying-pan. Allow to become very hot, then pour in sufficient batter to cover the bottom of the pan. When the upper surface is "bubbly" turn the pancake with a palette knife or fish-slice, and cook the other side. Serve hot, with sweetened, whipped cream or chocolate sauce.

Rice Pancakes.—One teaspoonful flour, 1 teaspoonful boiled rice, 1 teaspoonful milk, 1 table-spoonful melted butter, 1 teaspoonful salt, 1½ teaspoonful baking powder, 1 egg. Mix the drained rice, the milk, the well-beaten egg, and the melted butter. Stir in the sifted flour and baking powder. Beat well and cook as in previous recipe. Spread with butter and grated cheese, pile one on top of the other, and serve-cut in wedges.

Wholemeal Pancakes.—6 ozs. wholemeal, 2 ozs. flour, 2 eggs, 1 pint milk, 1 dessert-spoonful melted honey. Mix the flour and wholemeal. Stir in the beaten egg-yolks and add the milk gradually. Beat well, set aside for two hours, then fold in the stiffly beaten egg-whites and the melted honey. Cook for three minutes on either side and serve spread with marmalade or honey. Baked pancakes will appeal to those who are not votaries of the frying-pan.

French Pancakes.—Three eggs, 2 ozs. flour, 1 table-spoonful castor sugar, ½ teaspoonful melted butter. Beat the eggs and sugar till creamy, sift in the flour, then add the milk and the melted butter, beating till smooth. Butter some old saucers and pour a little of the batter into each. Bake in a hot oven till nicely browned. Serve hot, sprinkled with sugar and dotted with raspberry jam.

Savoury Pancakes.—These are made from the standard recipe (½ lb. flour, 2 eggs, 1 pint milk, ½ teaspoonful salt) by adding finely minced ox tongue, or

GLORIFYING YOURSELF.

By Alicia Hart

If you pay enough attention to your hair, you will find that every one else will, too. But it takes time. And attention. And patience.

First of all, shampoo your hair. Use warm water and a shampoo that makes a light, fluffy lather. If you are using soap itself, never rub it into your hair or on to your scalp. Make a soapy suds and apply them. Work the suds into your hair, and against your scalp, over and over again. Rinse in clear, lukewarm water. Gradually let the water grow colder, until an icy trickle wakens even the most dormant hair cell.

Dry your hair by rubbing it in bath towels that have lost their roughness but have retained enough weight to absorb water. If the sun is shining, and the day is warm, the odds are with you. Natural warmth is excellent for hair.

Hair does not need to be shampooed as often as most people think. Once every three or four weeks is quite enough unless you have some special hair or scalp complaint.

Once in a while someone decides that a shampoo is necessary in order to banish the particles of soap that cling to the scalp, following a shampoo. If you use a little lemon juice or a few drops of vinegar in your final rinse water, this will be avoided.

It isn't enough, however, to shampoo your hair and then expect the gods of beauty to keep the dust and grime away until three or four weeks have passed. If you rely entirely on soap and water for cleanliness continue in your usual fashion.

But if you are wise you will buy a strong long bristled brush, lay in a supply of towels for dry shampoos, and learn just how many aids to hair cleanliness are really at your disposal.

WATER MARK ON FURNITURE

Splashes of water leave an ugly stain on a polished surface. Rub the marks with a damp cloth, sprinkled with spirits of camphor; follow with another cloth dipped in linseed or olive oil, and rub well.

chopped, cooked vegetables to the batter before frying, seasoning with dried parsley. For variety, hot chopped meat, flaked fish, or vegetable puree moistened with tomato sauce, may be used as a filling for plain pancakes.

TROUSER FASHION.

It's the Blondes Who Buy Suits.

Two Hundred men's lounge suits were sold to women in London stores last week.

But only five per cent. of the buyers announced their intention of wearing them outdoors.

London women have their own version of the lounge suit. It is the "smoking suit," made in cashmere, flannel or satin of a vivid colour and intended for indoors only.

Another creation is the "harom suit," with a blouse top and wide Turkish trousers, made in softest blues, purples, and greens.

The managers of one large store said "We have sold forty this week, and have had hundreds of inquiries about lounge suits from women of all ages who will buy when the fashion is a little more established."

"I cannot imagine why, but it seems to be a fashion appealing chiefly to blondes. Brunettes apparently prefer skirts."

"Small women do not buy them. My customers are mostly at least 5ft. 6in. tall."

"Nearly every woman who buys a lounge suit feels she must give a reason."

"Usually the excuse is that they are 'so comfortable,' or 'such a change,' but one told me that her husband had noticed what she wore for at least three years, and she meant to make him notice for once by calling for him at his golf club in a lounge suit."

"We shall see women in trousers in the streets this summer. But not at Wimbledon, Ascot, or Ranelagh, neither do I think they will ever be permitted in offices or shops."

"But smoking suits are the last word in comfort, and can be as becoming as a negligee."

NEW TOWEL EFFECTS

Applied borders are one of the newest notes in autumn towels. White is playing a large colour part, also since bedrooms and bathrooms are going in, more and more, for white effects. The towel space, however, isn't merely blank. It is decorated with white designs that make it interesting.

This Rose Descat model of brown felt and brown gros-grain has a small turned-down brim and a crown very shallow in front, rising to a smart height which is accentuated by two pleats and a band of the ribbon.

MONA MORAN who supports her mother, invalid father, little sister, KITTY, and a few other people, is determined to marry for wealth and position. She is receptionist for a Wall Street law firm and in the office sees men of the world to which she aspires.

Mona's brother, who had her childhood sweetheart, STEVE, a gambler, had returned home. Steve disappeared three years earlier and it was rumored he was in prison though Mona never believed this.

She meets him on her way to work one morning. Steve is handsome, well dressed and well mannered. Mona does not wish to renew the friendship but accepts his invitation to dinner. Later in the day she meets DAVIDY TOWNSEND, rich and socially prominent.

The truth about Steve is that he had been involved with gamblers and had gone straight since. With no thought of propriety but wanting Mona to love her prettily, he buys her a gown and wraps. She finds them in her room that night and finally decides to wear them.

Steve had pressed the bell three times, paused and then twice more. His old signal. He sat in the lean, low-awning car, gloved fingers drumming on its wheel and hummed softly. His eyes were intent on the dark, dingy little entrance of the apartment house.

He had not parked immediately in front of the door. Mrs. Casey's window commanded too fine a view of the entrance. Too fine a view of "that Wop, Steve in a big car, sit-her head smartly smooth, her high far collar white as drifted snow, her carriage graceful.

Mona, moving toward him in that silent street, might have been a young queen. "Get out of sight and car shot," she whispered when Steve was about to swing out of his seat to assist her. She climbed swiftly in beside him.

"Now drive like the fiend you are and let's cheat the Caseys! I'm planning to tell you what I think of a young man who sends articles of attire to his young women friends."

The car glided forward but Steve's eyes were on Mona. He approved of her. Three years before she would have said "gentleman" and "lady friends."

"Well, you liked them, didn't you?" Steve asked. "You looked like a million dollars as you came through that door. 'Steve, I say to myself, 'Is it Gloria Swanson? No. It's only that homely Moran girl!'"

Mona laughed in spite of herself. It had occurred to her that since she was wearing the gown Steve had sent she could hardly be harsh with him. She should have sent them back with a reproving note.

"I feel like a million," she

"It so happened," Mona went on precisely as though he had not spoken, "that Mother had sent my one and only evening gown to Alice. She married Jim Halliday, you know, and lives up in the Dyckman section. I wore these because I had to, but they'll go back tomorrow."

"After you've worn them?" Steve asked, a twinkle in his eye, yet with mock severity.

Mona smiled serenely. "You should see the prayer books and theatre programs we've pulled out of 'unworn' returns at Pilgrim's."

Steve did not reply immediately. Then he laid a gloved hand over her own and spoke softly.

"Listen, Hon. Remember the Christmases when all I gave you was a candy box with holly on it or some 10 cent store perfume? Well, those days are over and I'm making up for it. To-day (he could not quite keep pride out of his voice) those duds you're wearing don't mean any more to me than the pound of candy did in other days."

"But it's the spirit of the thing, the spirit behind the box of candy, Steve. It isn't the cost."

"Okay. Then it's the spirit behind that handful of clothes and not their value. So that's that!" It was not that at all but Mona decided on silence. She'd take the clothes back to-morrow and with Lottie's help see that they were received.

"I knew you'd feel—well, just right—in any rig Pilgrim picked for you. We almost had every dress in the place on the model before I found just the right one!"

"You went yourself, Steve? Did you see Lottie?"

But Lottie had not been in evidence. Probably she was resting up for to-night's date. Frequently Lottie strained her long connection with Pilgrim's to what Mona thought must be near the breaking point.

It was just as well that Steve hadn't seen her. Lottie had liked Steve even when he was penniless. Now that he was apparently wealthy she might make a play for him. Mona thought, smiling a little, that nothing would endear Steve to her quite so much as Lottie's making that play.

A shaft of jealousy shot through her and she laughed again. Jealous! Did that mean she was luxury indeed to ride thus in costly furs, beside a handsome young man in such a car!

"I want to take you where we can have dinner and dance. I want to take you to the best night club in town. I'm so sick of loneliness and heat I can't see straight."

"New York is full of girls, Steve," Mona tried to make her voice discouraging.

"It's not full of girls like you!"

Suddenly he put his arm about her—they were in a deserted section of the park—and drew her to him. He kissed her, kissed her again and again.

"When I think of you working so hard, and that brother of your not helping—" Steve's voice was trembling. "Lord, Min, I've been making money! Let me stand behind you if you need me. It must be tough going, Min, lots of times. Most of the time!"

Mona thought of the rent, the insurance, her father's small fee at the hospital, the quarters Bud borrowed and the bills handed every Saturday to Ma who stretched them somehow to last through the week.

She thought of days when she had gone without lunch, pretending she had gained two pounds the week before and was fasting to keep slim.

Then she thought of the emerald cloak she was wearing. She thought of what Mrs. Casey would say to Mrs. Callahan if she caught sight of it. And she thought of Steve's kisses.

She could not admit—even to herself—that she had wanted Steve to kiss her. No, she had merely endured those caresses. It would have been cheap to take offense. He was her childhood friend and, as in the old days he had brought her apples or oranges, now he was sharing his good fortune with her. Still it wasn't to be thought that this could lead to anything more serious. She wouldn't spoil his evening by telling him that now though.

Steve's eyes were fastened on the strip of asphalt ahead, the glittering panorama of the city, the pyramids of lighted dots reaching into the sky. The car swerved, veered again, and plunged down another highway toward Columbus Circle.

Dexterously Steve swung the car between a pile of cobble stones and a rope hung with red lights. Then Broadway, gloomy in the automobile section but bright and garish in the lower forties.

He said, "I am going to take you to the Halcyon Club."

Mona knew the Halcyon Club. It had opened recently and was at the moment one of New York's most advertised supper clubs. The music was the best, the dance floor excellent, and the food (incredible for a night club) appetizing.

They left the car in the shadows of the side street into which Steve had guided it and walked the few yards to the supper club door. The doorman recognized Steve and answered his greeting effusively, springing to hold the swinging doors apart.

ting there for all the world like a swell.

There was a dim light in the hall. The door opened, closed softly and swiftly. Steve could see the narrowing crack of light vanish above someone's head. Only Mona's hair could gleam with such a halo! He must learn to call her Mona now.

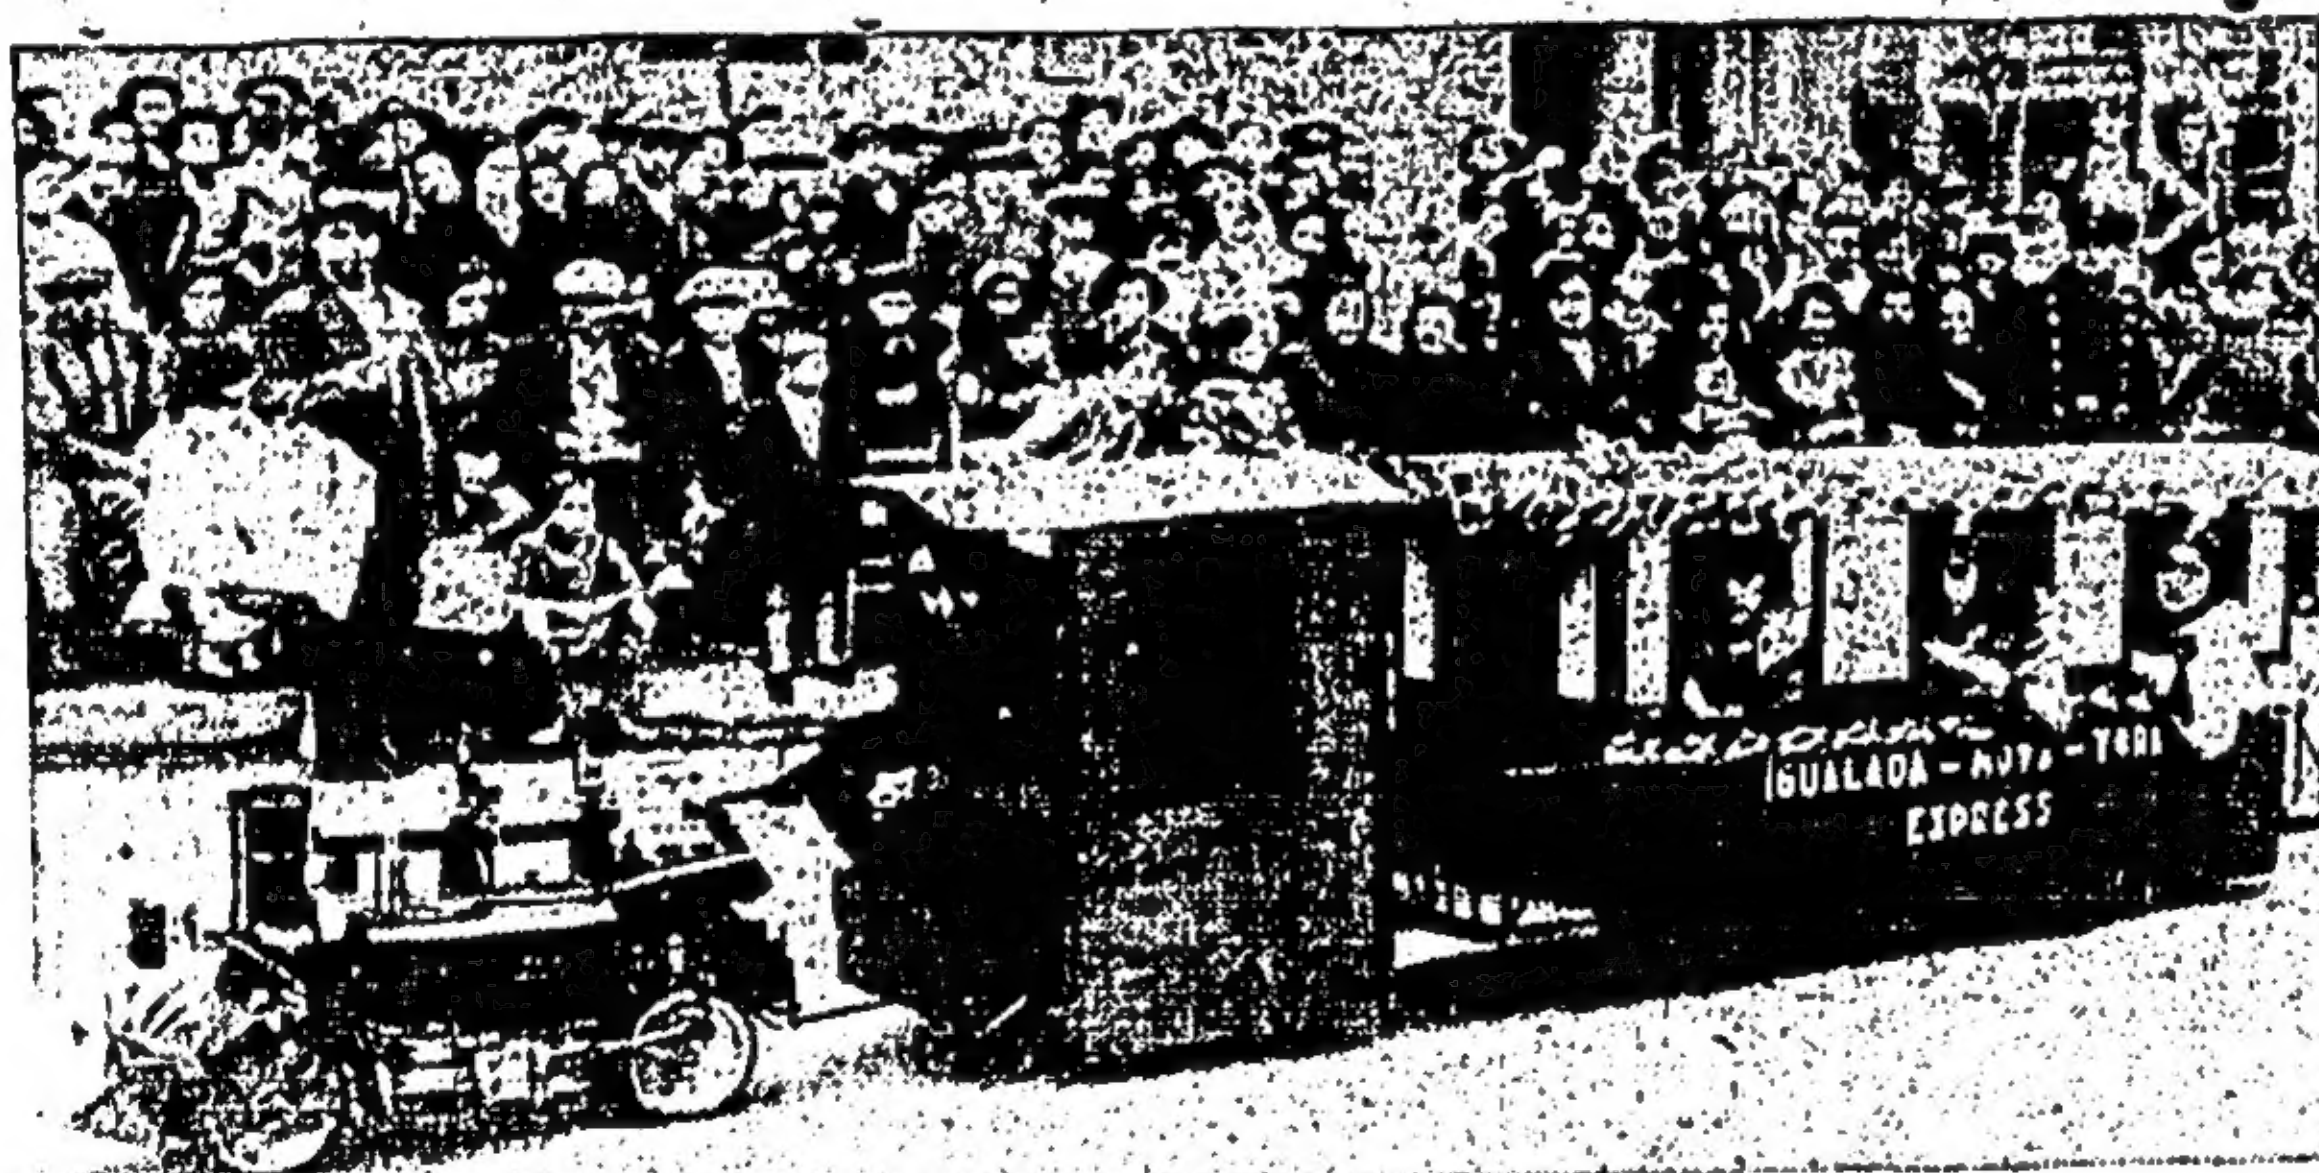

As she came into view, the glow of the street light touching her gently, he almost gasped. This childhood pal of his was beautiful! She was more than that. The girl who came toward him was regal, acknowledged. "Maybe I looked it, but the door didn't, Steve. Nothing like it. And I belong behind that door. I'm only playing Cinderella tonight because—well, because I thought it would please you."

"It does please me," returned Steve sincerely.

falling for old Steve and abandoning her plan to marry a man of wealth and position? Someone like Barry Townsend?

They were moving through the park now, driving slowly, and Mona enjoyed it. Too often she had walked (for lack of carfare), through that same park. It was "Madame Secretary"—that's the title Miss Frances Perkins, the new secretary of labor, has designated for herself. Here is the first woman cabinet member as she left her first cabinet meeting. A White House guard calls, "Madame Secretary's car."

Mona and Steve walked down thickly carpeted steps into the tiny foyer lined with mirrors. Then through more swinging doors toward the insinuating murmurs of the orchestra.

It was easy to see that Steve was delighted to be able to bring Mona here. The admiring glances of the men they passed, the speculative, envious glances of the women were no new experience for Mona but they gratified her escort.

ANZAC DAY

AUSTRALIAN RESIDENTS TO CELEBRATE

Anzac Day, which a year ago was practically unknown in Hongkong, is now definitely on the calendar. Next Tuesday, April 25, Australian and New Zealand residents will again gather in recognition of the day, as is the custom throughout the Commonwealth and Dominion.

That the day promises to be celebrated annually is due largely to the formation of the Anzac Company of the Hongkong Volunteer Defence Corps, which was born on April 25 last year when Anzac Day was recognised in Hongkong for the first time. The Company has decided to hold its annual dinner on that day, and also to hold a short ceremony at the Cenotaph. Details of the arrangements, which are now well in hand, will be announced later.

Last year's observance of Anzac Day, organised by a committee of enthusiastic Australians and New Zealanders, was highly successful. The two minutes' silence and ceremony at the Cenotaph was attended by a large number of civilians and representatives of the Services. The outcome of a dinner at the Hongkong Hotel was the formation of the Anzac Company which has added much to the strength and efficiency of the Volunteers Corps.

At next Tuesday's cenotaph ceremony, the Company will parade in uniform, together with representatives of the Army, Navy and Air Force, and several members of the South Wales Borderers who were associated with the original Anzacs at the landing at Gallipoli in 1916. The dinner in the evening will be held at the Volunteer Headquarters. Australians and New Zealanders interested can obtain further information from Lieut. C. de Saille Robertson, M.M., of the Hongkong Brewers and Distillers, 7, Duddell Street.

TWO EUROPEANS KILLED

FIGHT WITH PIRATES
NEAR MACAO.

CUSTOMS LAUNCH
SEIZED

Macao, Apr. 17. A Chinese Maritime Customs motor launch which stuck on a mudbank in the early hours of this morning near Pang Chong Island, fifteen miles from Macao, was shortly afterwards attacked by pirates.

Two of the European officers aboard the launch, Mr. E. E. Pearce, and Mr. Baldwin, were killed, also a Chinese engineer. One boatman was injured.

The launch, which was under the charge of Mr. E. E. Pearce, with Mr. Baldwin as Second Officer, was the Chenan and was proceeding on a cruise on Sunday, entered the creek near Pang Chong Island in the afternoon and grounded during ebb tide. The officers observed sampans, which were presumably occupied by smugglers halting them from the shore.

Point Blank Attack.

Suddenly 50 men fired at the boat with rifles from a 15 feet range, the bullets traversing the boat's side and striking Baldwin's hand, Pearce's chest and the motorman's body. Six of the remaining crew hid immediately.

The pirates boarded the vessel, looting everything and then decamped, promising to return. They declared they wanted to take the Europeans for ransom.

Baldwin, whose hand was smashed, was taken to seek help. He walked for hours before he found a sampan and eventually reached Macao at 1 o'clock this morning. He was removed to hospital where the doctor amputated the limb, but the victim died at 7 o'clock.

Portuguese Help.

Meanwhile the crew arrived at Macao and reported at the Customs office, which requested the Portuguese authorities to co-operate owing to the customs cruisers' inability to reach the locality.

Commander Soares de Oliveira, Harbour Master, despatched an armed motor launch and succeeded in bringing in the corpses. He stated that they found Pearce sitting in a posture, having apparently died from loss of blood.

He said the launch had been completely looted. It is reported that the Chinese and British authorities will pursue the pirates to recover the motor launch.

The Customs officers offer high praise to the Portuguese for their splendid work, and help in locating the site.—Reuter and Our Own Correspondent.

Well-Known Locally.

Both men are well known locally. Mr. Baldwin was formerly in the Royal Navy, attached to H.M.S. Hermes. He was a well-known boxer, and in January this year, participated in the Naval Boxing Tournament.

He was runner-up for the China Fleet Lightweight Championship in 1931, and this year defeated Leading Seaman Hall for the Championship in one of the most sensational bouts of the season.

Baldwin left the Navy shortly afterwards and joined the Maritime Customs. For the past six weeks he has been employed on patrol duty in the vicinity of Hongkong and Macao.

AVERT THROAT TROUBLE.

PEPS Prevent Laryngitis,
Tonsillitis & Worse Dangers.

More diseases start in the throat than people ever realise. Infectious germs produce tonsillitis, inflammation and consumption of the chest and lungs. They enter your system through the mouth and throat. Therefore, always watch your throat and at the least sign of hoarseness, pain in swallowing, or inflammation take Peps infection-killing tablets. When a Peps tablet is removed from its silver wrapper and dissolved in the mouth it gives off agreeable antiseptic medicaments of a highly volatile nature. These mingle with the breath, and give all membranes and tissues of the throat a soothing and germ-killing bath. Thus Peps quickly end pain and soreness, heal irritation and inflammation, and have a purifying and invigorating action on the whole bronchial system.

Suck these handy Peps tablets to prevent throat infections which come from germ-laden dust and foul air. Peps are much better, pleasanter and of more lasting effect than gargles. Take Peps as a remedy for coughs, colds, laryngitis, bronchitis, influenza, catarrh, night chills, early-morning cough and other chest and lung weaknesses. All medicine dealers sell Peps in handy size bottles. Agents: Messrs. Gilman & Co., Ltd., 4A, Des Voeux Road, Hongkong.

FLIER HOME
AT LASTCAPTAIN BERTRAM
IN BERLINGIVEN A ROYAL RECEPTION

Berlin, Apr. 17.
Capt. Hans Bertram, the German aviator received a royal reception from thousands of enthusiasts when he unexpectedly arrived here this afternoon from Athens.

He brought with him a letter from the Australian Prime Minister, stating his flight to Australia had strengthened Australian-German friendship.

Capt. Bertram had a chequered flight from Australia to Germany. He started off last December but was forced to descend and crashed at Sourabaya owing to a stowaway on board. He resumed his flight from Sourabaya on April 11, with the intention of reaching Berlin by the 16th, but an accident at Allahabad ruined his prospects of achieving this, although he managed a very fast trip and was only 24 hours behind schedule.

QUICK FINISH.

Capt. Bertram left Sourabaya at 3 a.m. on April 11, called at Batavia and then Alor Star in the Federated Malay States. He experienced a mishap at Allahabad on April 13, when the undercarriage of his machine struck a fence and caused delay in his departure.

However he left the same day, at noon and flew to Jodhpur, thence to Aleppo and on to Athens. His final hop was from Athens to Berlin and he accomplished the whole trip in six days.—Reuter.

PROSECUTOR'S ADDRESS.

Charges MacDonald With Being Experienced Spy.

Moscow, Apr. 17.

When the court resumed to-day, M. Vishinsky continued his summing up for the prosecution with renewed vigour. Some of the Englishmen showed signs of the terrible strain.

Vishinsky recited the technical defects of the Metropolitan Vickers products in support of his argument that the only reason for the breakdowns was sabotage in order to reduce output.

He proceeded to flatter MacDonald for confessing. "He was honest, if it is possible to talk about honesty in connexion with these people," he said. "He was brave, too. Braver than Thornton this gallant Mesopotamian soldier."

Vishinsky charged Cushman with ignoring a bad working turbine, No. 2, showing that he did not care whether it worked well or badly. He suggested the wreckers had their own "Five Year Plan" at the chief Moscow station which supplies the industrial activities round Moscow, as the sabotaging started in 1928.

"There is one of the accused of whose guilt I am not certain," he said. "I shall discuss the section under which he should be charged later."

This is supposed to refer to Gregory. Vishinsky claimed to have photographs constituting proofs of guilt.

The Prosecutor declared that MacDonald was an experienced secret service agent and cleverer than the rest. He was caught red-handed in sabotaging and informed later on his co-prisoners. The information he had gathered was of no interest to Metropolitan Vickers.

He described some of Thornton's statements in court as "nonsense and child's play."

Among the bribes he alleged had been made by Thornton were eau de cologne and a pair of trousers. "I shall demand the severest punishment for Gusev, the self-confessed saboteur and secret agent," malignantly asserted Vishinsky. The apparently doomed man stared at the floor with bowed head.

Vishinsky said they had surplus evidence against Nordwal who had made four mistakes in giving evidence about a fur coat, he gave to "nasty dirty Lobanov."

Vishinsky dismissed the Russian prisoners quickly differentiating the degrees of culpability. For example, Siebert's crimes were balanced by his confession and did not require a severe sentence, whereas Sukouroschkin,

AIR LADEN
WITH TARWHAT LONDONERS
BREATHEDOMESTIC SMOKE
POLLUTION

The atmosphere of England's towns is improving, but the latest records of the City of London observing station show "a somewhat disturbing situation."

These are the outstanding facts recorded in the annual report of the Investigation of Atmospheric Pollution, issued by the Department of Scientific and Industrial Research.

A five years' national survey to ascertain the general position shows that at 40 out of 47 town stations there has been a decrease in the amounts of atmospheric deposits.

Further improvement during the last administrative year is reported from stations at Glasgow, Leeds, Marple, Newcasttle, Rochdale, and Wakefield.

In London, the report states, the abnormally high deposit of tar at Golden-lane station in the city was repeated, and it is suggested that special pollution due to domestic smoke is responsible. Although the tar deposit decreased during the year from 7.3 tons to 5.5 tons per square mile, it is emphasised that it is still nearly 3½ times greater than the average deposit for the last five years.

Reference is also made to a West London mystery—the continuance of abnormally high deposits of sulphates, which are particularly damaging to buildings, at the Ravenscourt Park station. This condition is described as unusually bad, but no explanation of its cause is given.

CAUSES OF FOG.

Discussing the occurrence of smoke fogs, the report emphasises that there is still enough smoke produced in London to cause dense fog if unfavourable atmospheric conditions continue for longer than the normal average of three hours.

Within the last ten years, it is added, the amount of sulphur in London's air has, if anything, increased, and its presence tends to bring about "condensation" (normal white) fogs under conditions which might not otherwise cause fog.

During the winter months smoke haze was recorded on no fewer than 111 out of 186 days at the Westminster City Hall (Trafalgar-square). Conditions in West London were, however, somewhat better. For the year the average deposit at all the London stations was 284 tons of solid matter per square mile.

A new method has been developed, the report adds, for measuring the amount of damaging sulphur in the air, and the record for the highest concentration is held by Barnsey. Tar it is explained, is principally a product of domestic fires, and there is little reason to think that the amount of smoke from this source has decreased much within recent years.

who worked under Thornton and was instrumental in wrecking the first Moscow station, deserved heavy punishment. Apparently Vishinsky will ask for only one death sentence, namely Gusev.

Before the adjournment of the morning session, Vishinsky concluded his summing up. He declared that except for Gregory, all the prisoners were guilty under Article 58 carrying a maximum sentence of shooting, but the failure of their intentions was a mitigating circumstance.—Reuter.

DAY BY DAY NEWS IN BRIEF

IT IS FOOLISH AND INSOLENT TO IMAGINE THAT THE ART WHICH WE OURSELVES PRACTICE IS GREATER THAN ANY OTHER; BUT IT IS WISE TO TAKE CARE THAT IN OUR OWN HANDS IT IS AS NOBLE AS WE CAN MAKE IT.—Ruskin.

Two black Chow dogs which bit a Chinese have been sent to the Ma Tau Slaughterhouse for observation. The victim was treated at the Kowloon Hospital.

Receiving head injuries through a fall in his kitchen, Pan Yau-chun, of Tang Lung Street, Wanchai, was sent to the Government Civil Hospital. His condition is not serious.

Mrs. Mareto of 154, Johnson Road, in a report to the Police states that while her daughter was playing on the foot path outside the house, a chow dog, owned by Mr. Sato of 74 Hennessy Road, attacked the girl and bit her in the right cheek. The girl was immediately treated by a Japanese doctor, and later sent to the Government Civil Hospital. The dog was sent to Kennedy Town for observation.

Sentence of two years' hard labour was passed on Ho Chong at the Criminal Sessions this morning before Mr. Justice Wood (Acting Chief Justice) for breach of a life deportation order made in 1923. Prisoner pleaded guilty and stated that since his banishment he had been making factoring lamps in Canton and had returned to the Colony to get some materials which were not obtainable in Canton. He pleaded for leniency.

PROFESSOR'S MODEL OF AN ESTUARYPROBLEM OF SEVERN
WATERS SOLVEDBarrage Difficulties Made Easier

Behind the announcement of the scheme to harness the tides in the estuary of the River Severn at a cost of over £38,000,000 lies the story of years of research and experiment carried out by a Professor of Manchester University in his laboratories.

He is Professor Arnold Gibson, and his work in connexion with the Severn Barrage plan began in 1925, when the Economic Advisory Committee, of which he was a member, recommended that he should be invited to construct a model of the River Severn estuary at the Victoria University, Manchester, where he has been Professor of Engineering for many years—and to undertake a series of experimental investigations.

Accordingly, Professor Gibson had built a large-scale tidal model of the estuary, and, in a long series of experiments spread over seven years, has examined on the model the effect of various types of barrage on tide levels and navigation in the River Severn.

Old Problem Solved

As a result of these investigations the Professor was able to recommend the type of barrage most appropriate to the natural conditions of the estuary; and the main difficulty that had beset engineers and technical experts since the scheme was mooted in 1920 was largely overcome.

So accurate was Professor Gibson's model that, although it was constructed and moulded according to the contours of the bed of the River Severn as they were known to have existed in 1849, it was found to coincide in a remarkable degree with the contours shown to exist by the survey of the Hydrographer of the Admiralty in 1927.

This was proved by applying the tides over the intervening period of 78 years to the model. The tidal waters in the estuary are the highest experienced anywhere round the coast, the tidal rise reaching nearly 50 feet at times.

Two Calculations Agree

The Professor's next step was to calculate the amount of energy that would be available from a barrage constructed at a point known as the English Stones, which the Council decided would be the best possible site.

He calculated at intervals of half an hour from the mean tide curves, while another expert experimented at intervals of 15 minutes, representing approximately a fall of from three to eight inches, according to the working head of the turbines.

The two sets of calculations, each based upon a different approach to the problem, gave almost identical results regarding the power that would be available.

TOWER OF PISA
IN SPLINTSWATER POCKETS
FOUND AT BASEREINFORCEMENT
WORK BEGUN

Long-threatened danger to the stability of the famous leaning tower of Pisa has led to the formulation of an extensive reinforcement scheme.

Work on this has begun, and the top of the tower now looks over a heavy framework of scaffolding. Stanchions have been erected on the shorter side of the tower to take off some of the structural strain while work is being done at the base.

The tower is built on clay soil, and a subsoil survey has revealed that slowly but surely the increase in the angle of the tower has formed pockets of water round the base, which in turn have been lessening the resistance of the subsoil. During the last 100 years the tower has moved 15 centimetres.

The first alarm which has led to the present work was as far back as 1913, and it is felt that not a moment more should be lost, although the engineers proclaim that there is no immediate danger.

The first stage of the work now undertaken consists in a gradual cementing up of the ring wall forming the tower's foundation. The second stage is the scientific drainage of the ground, and its consolidation to a great depth below and around the tower with reinforcement at all weak points by means of cement injected under high pressure.

The work, which is being done at the expense of the State, will last until next winter; and the tolling of the great bell has been stopped, as this vibration was causing perilous oscillation to the fabric.

Nearly £40,000 has been earmarked to safeguard this architectural Renaissance gem from eventual danger.

PRISON FOR WELSH
COMMUNISTSLEADER WHO STUDIED
REVOLUTION

"You may call yourselves politicians, but I believe you are more correctly described as an organised gang of criminals," said Mr. Justice Humphreys at the Old Bailey in sentencing four Welsh miners—Ernest Charles Stand, Ernest Whitley, Leonard Jefferies, and Samuel Paddock—who had been committed from Newport on charges of conspiring to seduce goldminers from their duty and allegiance to his Majesty.

The case for the Crown was that an endeavour was made to get copies of a paper called "The Soldier's Voice. Organ of the Communist Soldiers," distributed among soldiers at Newport Barracks by a Territorial named Lloyd, who was a member of the Communist Party.

Defendants were found guilty on all counts.

Detective Inspector Harris, of Newport, said that Stand began life as a miner and later attended Labour College in London for three years. In 1926 he returned to Glamorgan, where he became an active Communist. From 1927 to 1930 he attended what was known as a Lenin course at a Communist college in Moscow.

The Inspector said he understood that the students there received instruction in theoretical and practical revolutionary knowledge.

In 1931 he was again in Russia as a delegate to a conference of Friends of the Soviet Union. He was known to the police in South Wales as a man who by underground methods attempted to create strife and disorder. His one aim was revolution.

As chief of the Communist Party in South Wales, said the officer, Stand issued instructions to, such men as his fellow prisoners to undertake work which might expose them to conflict with the police, but he remained in his office. There was no question but that he was well paid for his work.

RESORT OF ALIEN "REDS".
Jeffries, he said, first came to the notice of the police as a Communist in 1923. He was connected with the Labour League of ex-Servicemen, the members of which were equipped with military uniforms, and no doubt their aim was revolution.
He went to Russia, and on his return in 1931 he was appointed acting district organiser in South

CHINESE PULL OFF CUP "DOUBLE"

CIVILIANS' MISERABLE SHOWING

CAT AND MOUSE GAME IN LAI WAH CUP FINAL YESTERDAY

(By "Veritas")

THE least said is soonest mended. The Lai Cup final played yesterday between the Chinese and Civilians, the better. SUFFICE to add that it was about the worst game ever seen in this competition, for that matter, any other local tournament, and that the Chinese won by only six goals to one (I say "only" advisedly) was their funeral entirely.

Probably less than a dozen people seriously expected to see the Civilians win, but none anticipated such a pitiful display as they served up.

CAT AND MOUSE.

The Chinese played cat and mouse with them from the first to the last whistle; in fact the concluding stages were ludicrous, the winners evidently coming to the conclusion that serious football was not worth the candle and just tapped the ball one to the other quite aimlessly, but still neatly.

All the good football was confined to the first half and was the exclusive property of the Chinese. During the initial "45" they did play really excellent soccer. But it demoralised the Civilians who went from bad to worse.

There was not a weak link in the Chinese team. Or if there was it was not noticeable as the inaptitude of the opposition was sufficient to obscure shortcomings on the part of the winners.

The Chinese defence was hardly ever troubled and certainly never given any anxiety. Leung Wing-chui, Wong Mee-shun, and Tong Kwan constituted an impenetrable half back line and a trio who spoon fed their forwards with ground passes.

FUNG BRILLIANT.

Fung King-cheung was brilliant at centre-forward, and the left wing composed of Ip Pak-wa and Tam Kong-pak streets ahead of the Civilians' defence.

Marques performed creditably in the losing role, and at times stood alone between the Chinese and goals. Strange and Duncan were variable at back and when Strange moved up to centre-half in the second half, he was even less useful.

Channings was not a success either as centre-half in the first moiety, or as leader of the attack in the later stages. Skinner, who came in for Bliss ran round in small circles in an endeavour to hold Ip Pak-wa and Duncan, although a little better in defence, revealed his old faults in constructive play.

B. Gosano was hopeless on the right wing giving his poorest showing of the season, whilst Shepherd was equally futile inside. S. Strange was a "go-getter," but was unsupported, and too often did the wrong thing at the wrong moment, such as dribbling when he should have passed and vice versa.

JOHNSTON LEFT BACK!

Johnston was given no opportunity at centre forward, but enjoyed himself when sent to left back. He had to shine there or the Chinese would have scored a couple of dozen!

Santos scored a clever goal in his first ten minutes and then faded out of the picture, largely thanks to being so inadequately partnered.

The Chinese were 5-1 to the good at half time, all being first rate goals, the product of high class football.

Fung King-cheung scored the first, Tam Kong-pak the second (from a penalty) and the third, whilst Ip Pak-wa registered the fourth and Fung the fifth.

After the Chinese had put on their first goal, Santos replied for the Civilians, although Johnston was yards offside at the time.

SIGH OF RELIEF.

The second half as featured only by desultory exchanges, one further goal being added by Tam Kong-pak.

Everybody heaved a sigh of relief when the final whistle blew, although none denied the Chinese the credit for winning that big Easter egg which I wrote about last Saturday.

BORDERERS BEAT THE NAVY

MULLANE AND SHIRRAS OUTSTANDING

The Borderers played convincing football to defeat the Navy in an important league tie yesterday, the soldiers making full use of their opportunities.

The Navy forwards were at fault and should have scored more than two goals. Warne was an effective attacker on the wing, but Langmead finished badly and was invariably in the wrong position.

A great display by Shirras was matched only by brilliant defensive work on the part of Mullane. The Borderers' attacking quintette were always the more lively than their opposites.

Forty and Harris scored for the Borderers in the first half, and Warne replied for the Navy, whilst Langmead succeeded in putting the teams on level terms with a terrific drive shortly after the interval. Thereafter the Borderers took the game into their own hands and made no doubt of the result through Mullane (from a penalty) and Harris.

The Navy were awarded 12 yards spot kick, but Smith repeated his achievement of the Shield and saved in remarkable style.

ITALIAN HEAVYWEIGHT IN COURT

Damage Suit Filed by Former Manager

Innocente Baiguera, heavy-weight champion of Italy now in the United States, has been summoned to appear in a damage suit filed by his former manager, Angelo Della Rovere.

Della Rovere claims Baiguera broke his managerial contract when he sailed for America last November against Della Rovere's wishes.

The Italian Boxing Federation has disqualified and fined Baiguera and has threatened to rescind his title unless his affair with Della Rovere is cleared up.

NO "OPEN" TENNIS TOURNAMENT AMERICA ABANDONS. THE IDEA

The Executive Committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, at a meeting last week decided by 15 votes to four to abandon for this year the proposed "open" tournament for amateurs and professionals.

The ostensible reason given for the abandonment was that no suitable date could be found.

During the meeting mention was made of the fact that the International Lawn Tennis Federation had barred such tournaments and that the Wimbledon authorities had banned all players competing in them.

HOW RENOLDS LOST TO JACK HOOD

ROUND BY ROUND DESCRIPTION OF A SPLENDID FIGHT

Ex-Stoker Reynolds, well remembered Hongkong boxer, unsuccessfully challenged Jack Hood for the welter-weight title of Great Britain at Birmingham last month.

The erstwhile navy man took the count in the ninth round for the first time in his career, but he put up a creditable display as the following special round by round account of the fight, described by a special correspondent of the Portsmouth Evening News, clearly shows.

Round 1.—Reynolds at once carried the fight to Hood, and early landed a heavy right swing to the jaw, again the Stoker rushed to close quarters and scored with both hands but Hood checked him the next time with a flush left to the jaw, and next brought the right heavily over to the head. Hood's left hand was again used to keep the Stoker at bay, and the round was even.

Round 2.—Reynolds chased Hood across the ring but without landing a punch, and when the Stoker bored in Hood held him off with the left, and brought the right over, but not with sufficient force to be damaging. Hood was showing his cleverness now, and his footwork was a special feature in steering clear of the Stoker's attacks. The Stoker missed badly with the right, and the round ended in favour of Hood.

Round 3.—Reynolds was first to attack and pushed Hood to the ropes. The Stoker made his best effort so far when he jumped in with a swinging left to the jaw, which both surprised and shook the champion, and, although the next time that the ex-navy man tried to rush in he was stopped by a right to the face, it was his round after the best session of the fighting so far.

Round 4.—Reynolds beat Hood to the lead, and kept up a persistent attack. He was a real terror now, and was not to be denied, though once Hood drew his opponent's lead before connecting with a telling body blow. This was a fairly tame round, and was about even so far as honours were concerned.

REYNOLDS PUNISHED.
Round 5.—Reynolds appeared the stronger at this stage, and while Hood was clever he could not stop the Stoker's rushes. Hood once measured Reynolds with the left and came across with the right to the head, but the Stoker never slowed down, and was clearly out to make the fight of his life. Hood boxed cleverly on the defensive near the end of the round, and the session ended in his favour.

Round 6.—Hood cleverly drew Reynolds leads, and countered with both hands to the head. Reynolds still kept rushing in but Hood was having more success with his efforts to stop his opponent's boring, and this was easily the Birmingham man's round. Reynolds taking a good deal more punishment than was generally realised.

Round 7.—The first thing of note was a crisp right by Hood under Reynolds' heart. Hood was the master now, and preferred to make Newport 40 11 7 22 60 100 20 Swindon 38 9 10 19 67 96 28 Cardiff 39 10 7 22 60 96 27 Clatop 0 39 7 12 20 64 96 28

JAPANESE DRIVE SUCCEEDS

AERIAL BOMBARDMENT

The Japanese and Manchukuo troops have now achieved their object of driving the Chinese forces across the Lun River (also called the Luan River).

The stiff Chinese resistance collapsed under heavy pressure, in which aeroplanes again played a large part. The Chinese on the coast were outflanked and had to withdraw rapidly.

Across the River.

Peking, Apr. 17.

Japanese troops are reported to have appeared at Shihpailiao, six miles north-west of Changli, and also near Funing.

Japanese troops entered Halayang on Saturday and proceeded westward after a short interval.—Reuter.

Many Casualties.

Peking, Apr. 17.

Chinese reports state that Chinese troops in the Chinwangtao region were forced to withdraw when the enemy swooped down on them from three sides.

As they withdrew, they were bombed and machine-gunned.

Terrible casualties were inflicted.—Reuter Morning Post Special.

Traffic Held Up.

Peking, Apr. 17.

It was learned yesterday that trains on the Peking-Mukden Railway are not proceeding further than Changli, 19 miles on the other side of the Luan River.

Later.

Trains are now not going further than Luanchow.

Chinese reports state that the Japanese last night reached Liukunyingtse, seven miles from Changli, which town was subjected to a heavy air bombardment this morning.—Reuter Special.

Buildings Levelled.

Peking, Apr. 17.

Nantassu is reported to have suffered heavily in the fighting at Chinwangtao region. The buildings which the Japanese artillery did not touch, have been levelled by Japanese bombers which continually dropped bombs on the town.

Little further north, fierce fighting is reported to be raging at Lunyung.—Reuter.

Aerial Bombing Continuing.

Peking, Apr. 16.

The Japanese aerial bombing is continuing as fighting between the Chinese and Japanese troops develops.

An official communique to-night describes how seven Japan aeroplanes to-day flew over the Chinese position at the Kueikow front and then coming further south, severely bombed the Red Swastika unit, dropping 30 bombs. Seven bombs registered hits, killing several of the members of the unit, including Mr. Chin Tuwei who was in charge of the relief work, and severely wounding a number of others, including Mr. Chen Chu-chi, well-known Shanghai charity worker.

According to the official communique, the Chinese fired at the Japanese aeroplanes with anti-aircraft guns, bringing down one and damaging another which managed, however, to make for the Japanese lines.—Reuter.

Army Statement.

Peking, April 17.

Reports from reliable sources in Mukden state that Japanese Army spokesmen declare that present operations outside the Luan River were undertaken with the sole object of destroying bases which the Chinese used for attacks on Japanese positions along the Great Wall.

If the attacks were started again from new sources, it was said, these bases would have to be destroyed also.

The Japanese Army admits that it found the initial Chinese resistance very stiff.—Reuter's Special.

CINEMA SCREENINGS.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES.

Because an actor, at some time or other, had done a particularly outstanding characterization in playing a certain role, he becomes "typed." He is afterwards in demand by directors, but usually only for similar characterization.

Noel Madison, is, perhaps the most "typed" actor in Hollywood. A picture embracing a gangster sequence would scarcely be complete without him. He has not been without a gun in his hand and a nutbrown suit of clothes on his back for three years and declares he has reached the point where he would scarcely know how to act without this equipment.

Madison portrays the role of a polite and suave criminal in "Me and My Gal," the new Fox comedy-drama now playing at the King's Theatre, with Joan Bennett and Spencer Tracy. The story revolves about the adventures of a peppy young plain clothes man who falls in love with a girl and whose romance leads to the capture of a super-crook and killer.

"Handle With Care"

"Boots" Mallory, who was prominent in George White's "Scandals," the Ziegfeld "Follies" and "Hot Cha" can boast of one distinction, perhaps not enjoyed by any other player in Hollywood. She made her debut as a public entertainer in a Sunday School show. Now she will be known as "Boots" Mallory of the films.

Displaying an early ability with string instruments, she was much in demand in public and private entertainments and, at twelve, joined a girls' band in which she played the banjo. At the same time, she developed a marked talent in pencil and charcoal sketching. And her work in this field attracted the attention of an expert person as Joseph Ball, the French artist. Later, she posed for a number of oil paintings by Ball and her face has been seen on many magazine covers.

When she was fifteen she went into vaudeville in a musical act with which she remained for several months. It was while she was singing in a New York night club that she came to the attention of George White who immediately gave her a place in his current show.

Miss Mallory's first film for Fox is "Handle With Care," in which she is co-featured with James Dunn. It will be seen at the King's Theatre on Thursday.

When Health is Failing...

That is the time when courage and perseverance are highly necessary. To lose heart as well as health can only end in disaster. It may be hard to maintain optimism, especially if many remedies have been tried without avail. But this has been exactly the position with many people who owe their recovery to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

When the system has been drained of its nervous energy, when there seems to be scarcely any strength left for even ordinary requirements, it is this old and proved blood and nerve tonic that you should call to your aid.

"Like it?" asked Mona boldly as Steve's eyes registered the answer to her query. She went on, "Little thing I picked up this afternoon. Picked up in my room where it had no business to be!"

She emphasized the last four words with little stabs of her finger in the air. She was flirting with him! It was safe enough here where he could not kiss her again.

Steve's eyes, however, turned away and searched the room speculatively. "I'm expecting my part-

A SIAM VETERAN.

MR. WALTHER GOTTSCHIE
COMPLETE 30 YEARS

On April 2 Mr. Walther Gottschie observed the thirtieth anniversary of his arrival in Siam. Born on the 14th October 1878 at Aarhus, Mr. Gottschie was trained as an engineer in his own country and Germany before coming out as a young man of twenty-five to Bangkok. He arrived on April 2, 1903, and joined the Paknam Railway as engineer, his uncle, Mr. T. A. Gottschie, being then and for many years afterwards, Manager, and later Secretary of the line. Then came service with the Bangkok Dock Co., Ltd., during the management of Mr. John M. Dunlop.

In September 1905, Mr. Gottschie was appointed engineer to the Tachin Railway Co. The amalgamation of the Tachin and Mekong Railways came in 1907, and Mr. Gottschie stayed on with the new Company until 1916. In the years of his service he acted as manager on several occasions.

From 1916 to 1920 Mr. Gottschie was in business on his own behalf in Bangkok, and then went fruit farming in California, working a sixty-acre vineyard and orchard, and he won prizes and awards for his grapes. After five years he returned to Siam, and for several years has been chairman and manager of the South Siam Mining Co., Ltd. He pays periodical visits to Hongkong.

Mr. Gottschie has three sons and a nephew at La Salle College, Kowloon, and one of his sons won the championship at the recent school sports.

PORTUGUESE WED.

YOUNG COUPLE MARRIED AT ROSARY CHURCH

At the Rosary Church, Kowloon, yesterday afternoon, the wedding was solemnised between Miss Helga Eleanor Savard-Remedios, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Savard-Remedios, and Mr. Archibaldo Maria da Luz, the son of Mr. and Mrs. S. E. da Luz. The Rev. Father Spada officiated. The service was choral with Miss Marie Rozario playing appropriate music at the organ.

Wearing a dress of white satin and lace, the creation of Madame Lollo, with embroidered veil of Brussels net held in place by a Juliet cap, the bride entered the Church on the arm of her father, by whom she was given away. She carried a sheaf of armillaries. The bride was supported by Miss Cynthia Savard-Remedios, Miss Elfrida Savard-Remedios and Miss Olga Ribeiro as bridesmaids. Their dresses were of pink net and their bouquets made up of gladioli.

Mr. Julio Ribeiro was best man to the bride and Mr. Armando da Silva best man to the bridegroom. Following a reception at 16, Carnarvon Road, Kowloon, the newly-married couple left for Rosary Church Hotel on their honeymoon. The bride's going away dress was of yellow flat crepe with hat to match.

PRACTICAL RECIPES.

Five Ways of Making Pancakes.

Gingerbread Pancakes.—Two cupsful flour, ½ teaspoonful syrup, ½ teaspoonful sour milk, 2 tablespoonful butter, 1 egg, 1 teaspoonful ginger, 1 teaspoonful cinnamon, ½ teaspoonful salt. Sift the flour, ginger, cinnamon, and salt. Melt the syrup and the butter, and stir in the baking soda. Add the beaten egg and the milk, and mix thoroughly. Stir in the dry ingredients, and beat till the batter is smooth. Melt a rounded teaspoonful of fresh butter in a clean frying-pan. Allow to become very hot, then pour in sufficient batter to cover the bottom of the pan. When the upper surface is "bubbly" turn the pancake with a palette knife or fish-slice, and cook the other side. Serve hot, with sweetened, whipped cream or chocolate sauce.

Rice Pancakes.—One teaspoonful flour, 1 teaspoonful boiled rice, 1 teaspoonful milk, 1 tablespoonful melted butter, 1 teaspoonful salt, ½ teaspoonful baking powder, 1 egg. Mix the drained rice, the milk, the well-beaten egg, and the melted butter. Stir in the sifted flour and baking powder. Beat well and cook as in previous recipe. Spread with butter and grated cheese, pile one on top of the other, and serve cut in wedges.

Wholemeal Pancakes.—6 ozs. wholemeal, 2 ozs. flour, 2 eggs, 1 pint milk, 1 dessertspoonful melted honey. Mix the flour and wholemeal. Stir in the beaten egg-yolks and add the milk gradually. Beat well, set aside for two hours, then fold in the stiffly beaten egg-whites and the melted honey. Cook for three minutes on either side and serve spread with marmalade or honey. Baked pancakes will appeal to those who are not votaries of the frying-pan.

French Pancakes.—Three eggs, 2 ozs. flour, 1 tablespoonful castor sugar, ½ teaspoonful melted butter. Beat the eggs and sugar till creamy, sift in the flour, then add the milk and the melted butter, beating till smooth. Butter some old saucers and pour a little of the batter into each. Bake in a hot oven till nicely browned. Serve hot, sprinkled with sugar and dotted with raspberry jam.

Savoury Pancakes.—These are made from the standard recipe (½ lb. flour, 2 eggs, 1 pint milk, ½ teaspoonful salt) by adding finely minced ox tongue, or

GLORIFYING YOURSELF.

By Alicia Hart

If you pay enough attention to your hair, you will find that everyone else will, too. But it takes time. And attention. And patience.

First of all, shampoo your hair. Use warm water and a shampoo that makes a light, fluffy lather. If you are using soap itself, never rub it into your hair or on to your scalp. Make a soapy suds and apply them. Work the suds into your hair, and against your scalp, over and over again. Rinse in clear, lukewarm water. Gradually let the water grow colder, until an icy trickle wakens even the most dormant hair cell.

Dry your hair by rubbing it in bath towels that have lost their roughness but have retained enough weight to absorb water. If the sun is shining, and the day is warm, the odds are with you. Natural warmth is excellent for hair.

Once in a while someone decides that a shampoo is necessary in order to banish the particles of soap that cling to the scalp, following a shampoo. If you use a little lemon juice or a few drops of vinegar in your final rinse water, this will be avoided.

It isn't enough, however, to shampoo your hair and then expect the gods of beauty to keep the dust and grime away until three or four weeks have passed. If you rely entirely on soap and water for cleanliness continue in your usual fashion.

But if you are wise you will buy a strong long bristled brush, lay in a supply of towels for dry shampoos, and learn just how many aids to hair cleanliness are really at your disposal.

WATER MARK ON FURNITURE

chopped, cooked vegetables to the batter before frying, seasoning with dried parsley. For variety, hot chopped meat, flaked fish, or vegetable puree moistened with tomato sauce, may be used as a filling for plain pancakes.

TROUSER FASHION.

It's the Blondes Who Buy Suits.

Two Hundred men's lounge suits were sold to women in London stores last week.

But only five per cent. of the buyers announced their intention of wearing them outdoors.

London women have their own version of the lounge suit. It is the "smoking suit," made in cashmere, flannel or satin of a vivid colour and intended for indoors only.

Another creation is the "harem suit," with a blouse top and wide Turkish trousers, made in soft blues, purples, and greens.

The managers of one large store said "We have sold forty this week, and have had hundreds of inquiries about lounge suits from women of all ages who will buy when the fashion is a little more established."

"I cannot imagine why, but it seems to be a fashion appealing chiefly to blondes. Brunettes apparently prefer skirts."

"Small women do not buy them. My customers are mostly at least 5ft. 6in. tall."

"Nearly every woman who buys a lounge suit feels she must give a reason."

"Usually the excuse is that they are 'so comfortable' or 'such a change,' but one told me that her husband had not noticed what she wore for at least three years, and she meant to make him notice for once by calling for him at his golf club in a lounge suit."

"We shall see women in trousers in the streets this summer. But not at Wimbledon, Ascot, or Ranelagh, neither do I think they will ever be permitted in offices or shops."

"But smoking suits are the last word in comfort, and can be as becoming as a negligee."

NEW TOWEL EFFECTS

Applied borders are one of the newest notes in autumn towels. White is playing a large colour part, also since bedrooms and bathrooms are going in, more and more, for white effects. The towel space, however, isn't merely blank. It is decorated with white designs that make it interesting.

This Rose Descat model of brown felt and brown grosgrain has a small turned-down brim and a crown very shallow in front, rising to a smart height which is accentuated by two pleats and a band of the ribbon.

LOVE or MONEY?

BY H. W. CORLEY

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

MONA MORAN who supports her mother, invalid father, little sister, KITTY, and never-do-well brother, BUD, is determined to marry for wealth and position. She is receptionist at a Wall Street law firm and in the office sees men of the world to which she aspires.

Mona's brother announces that her childhood sweetheart, STEVE BACCARELLI, grandson of the ice and coal dealer, has returned home. Steve disappeared three years earlier and it was rumored he was in prison though Mona never believed this.

She meets him on her way to work one morning. Steve handsome, well dressed and well-mannered. Mona does not wish to renew the friendship but accepts his invitation to dinner. Later in the day she meets BARRY TOWNSEND, rich and socially prominent.

The truth about Steve is that he had been involved with gangsters three years earlier but broke with them and has gone straight since. With no thought of injury but wanting Mona to look her prettiest, he buys her a gown and wraps. She finds them in her room that night and finally decides to wear them.

Steve had pressed the bell three times, paused and then twice more. His old signal. He sat in the lean, low-slung car, gloved fingers drumming on its wheel and humming softly. His eyes were intent on the dark, dingy little entrance of the apartment house.

He had not parked immediately in front of the door. Mrs. Casey's window commanded too fine a view of the entrance. Too fine a view of "that Wop, Steve in a big car, sit-her head smartly smooth, her high fur collar white as drifted snow, her carriage gracious.

Mona, moving toward him in that silent street, might have been a young queen. "Get out of sight and ear shot," she whispered when Steve was about to swing out of his seat to assist her. She climbed swiftly in beside him.

"Now drive like the fiend you are and let's cheat the Caseys! I'm planning to tell you what I think of a young man who sends articles of attire to his young women friends."

The car glided forward but Steve's eyes were on Mona. He approved of her. Three years before she would have said "gentleman" and "lady friends."

"Well, you liked them, didn't you?" Steve asked. "You looked like a million dollars as you came through that door. 'Steve,' I say to myself, 'is it Gloria Swanson? No, it's only that homely Moran girl!'"

Mona laughed in spite of herself. It had occurred to her that since she was wearing the gown Steve had sent she could hardly be harsh with him. She should have sent them back with a reproving note.

"I feel like a million," she

"It so happened," Mona went on precisely as though he had not spoken, "that Mother had sent my one and only evening gown to Alice. She married Jim Halliday, you know, and lives up in the Dyckman section. I wore these because I had to, but they'll go back tomorrow."

"After you've worn them?" Steve asked, a twinkle in his eye, yet with mock severity.

Mona smiled serenely. "You should see the prayer books and theatre programs we've pulled out of 'unworn' returns at Pilgrim's," she averred.

Steve did not reply immediately. Then he laid a gloved hand over her own and spoke softly.

"Listen, Hon. Remember the Christmases when all I gave you was a candy box with holly on it or some 10 cent store perfume? Well, those days are over and I'm making up for it. To-day (he could not quite keep pride out of his voice) those duds you're wearing don't mean any more to me than the pound of candy did in other days."

"But it's the spirit of the thing, the spirit behind the box of candy, Steve. It isn't the cost."

"Okay. Then it's the spirit behind that handful of clothes and not their value. So that's that!"

It was not that at all but Mona decided on silence. She'd take the clothes back to-morrow and with Lottie's help see that they were received.

"I knew you'd feel—well, just right—in any rig Pilgrim picked for you. We almost had every dress in the place or the model before I found just the right one!"

"You went yourself, Steve? Did you see Lottie?"

But Lottie had not been in evidence. Probably she was resting up for to-night's date. Frequently Lottie strained her long connection with Pilgrim's to what Mona thought must be near the breaking point.

It was just as well that Steve hadn't seen her. Lottie had liked Steve even when he was penniless. Now that he was apparently wealthy she might make a play for him. Mona thought, smiling a little, that nothing would endear Steve to her quite so much as Lottie's making that play.

A shaft of jealousy shot through her and she laughed again. Jealous! Did that mean she was luxury indeed to ride thus in costly furs, beside a handsome young man in such a car!

"I want to take you where we can't have dinner and dance. I want to take you to the best night club in town. I'm so sick of loneliness and heat I can't see straight."

"New York is full of girls, Steve," Mona tried to make her voice discouraging. "It's not full of girls like you!"

Suddenly he put his arm about her—they were in a deserted section of the park—and drew her to him. He kissed her, kissed her again and again.

"When I think of you working so hard, and that brother of your not helping—" Steve's voice was trembling. "Lord, Min, I've been making money! Let me stand behind you if you need me. It must be tough going, Min, lots of times. Most of the time!"

Mona thought of the rent, the insurance, her father's small fee at the hospital, the quarters Bud borrowed and the bills handed every Saturday to Ma who stretched them somehow to last through the week. She thought of days when she had gone without lunch, pretending she had gained two pounds the week before and was fasting to keep slim.

Then she thought of the crimson cloak she was wearing. She thought of what Mrs. Casey would say to Mrs. Callahan if she caught sight of it. And she thought of Steve's kisses.

She could not admit—even to herself—that she had wanted Steve to kiss her. No, she had merely endured those caresses. Steve's sincerity was unmistakable. It would have been cheap to take offense. He was her childhood friend and, as in the old days he had brought her apples or oranges, now he was sharing his good fortune with her. Still it wasn't to be thought that this could lead to anything more serious. She wouldn't spoil his evening by telling him that now though.

Steve's eyes were fastened on the strip of asphalt ahead, the glittering panorama of the city, the pyramids of lighted dots reaching into the sky. The car swerved, veered again, and plunged down another highway toward Columbus Circle.

Dexterously Steve swung the car between a pile of cobble stones and a rope hung with red lights. Then Broadway, gloomy in the automobile section but bright and garish in the lower forties.

He said, "I am going to take you to the Halcyn Club."

Mona knew the Halcyn Club. It had opened recently and was at the moment one of New York's most advertised supper clubs. The music was the best, the dance floor excellent, and the food (incredible for a night club!) appetizing.

They left the car in the shadows of the side street into which Steve had guided it and walked the few yards to the supper club door. The doorman recognized Steve and answered his greeting, effusively, springing to hold the swinging doors apart.

ting there for all the wurrld like a swell."

There was a dim light in the hall. The door opened, closed softly and swiftly. Steve could see the narrowing crack of light vanish above someone's head. Only Mona's hair could gleam with such a halo! He must learn to call her Mona now.

As she came into view, the glow of the street light touching her gently, he almost gasped. This childhood pal of his was beautiful! She was more than that. The girl who came toward him was regal, acknowledged. "Maybe I looked it, but the door didn't, Steve. Nothing like it. And I belong behind that door. I'm only playing Cinderella tonight because—well, because I thought it would please you."

"It does please me," returned Steve sincerely.

falling for old Steve and abandoning her plan to marry a man of wealth and position? Someone like Barry Townsend?

They were moving through the park now, driving slowly, and Mona enjoyed it. Too often she had walked (for lack of carfare), through that same park. It was "Madame Secretary"—that's the title Miss Frances Perkins, the new secretary of labour, has designated for herself. Here is the first woman cabinet member as she left her first cabinet meeting. A White House guard calls, "Madame Secretary's car."

Mona and Steve walked down thickly carpeted steps into the tiny foyer lined with mirrors. Then through more swinging doors toward the insinuating murmurs of the orchestra.

It was easy to see that Steve was delighted to be able to bring Mona here. The admiring glances of the men they passed, the speculative, envious glances of the women were no new experience for Mona but they gratified her escort.

Election parades and last minute demonstrations took place throughout Germany on the eve of the momentous elections. Thousands lined the streets of Berlin to watch detachments of Nazis and Steel Helmets parade, with their banners. Photo shows the Nazi Storm Troops passing along the Brandenburger Tor in Berlin. ## AN OLD TRICK SPOTTED

COOLIE CAUGHT FOR THEFT FROM SHIP

A coolie was charged before Mr. Butters at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning with stealing 86 feet of rope from the P. & O. s.s. Soudan, lying at Kowloon Wharf, at 9.30 a.m. yesterday.

Inspector Rozeksky said defendant was seen to come off the ship by Mr. H. J. Hoare, of the out-door staff of the Company, after a length of rope was pushed over the side. The prosecution alleged that it was defendant who pushed the rope over with the intention of taking it away.

After evidence by Mr. Hoare, his Worship convicted defendant and passed sentence of two months' hard labour. Defendant had a previous conviction for larceny this year and was bound over.

PEPS Prevent Laryngitis, Tonsillitis & Worse Dangers.

More diseases start in the throat than people ever realise. Infectious germs produce tonsillitis, inflammation and consumption of the chest and lungs. They enter your system through the mouth and throat. Therefore, always watch your throat and at the least sign of hoarseness, pain in swallowing, or inflammation take Peps infection-killing tablets. When a Peps tablet is removed from its silver wrapper and dissolved in the mouth it gives off agreeable antiseptic medicaments of a highly volatile nature. These mingle with the breath, and give all membranes and tissues of the throat a soothing and germ-killing bath. Thus Peps quickly end pain and soreness, heal irritation and inflammation, and have a purifying and invigorating action on the whole bronchial system.

Suck these handy Peps tablets to prevent throat infections which come from germ-laden dust and foul air. Peps are much better, pleasanter and of more lasting effect than gargles. ## THE SILVER PRICE LEVEL

America's well-known "silver Senators" have not yet abandoned hope of persuading President Roosevelt and his advisers to embark upon schemes for artificially raising the value of silver. For this reason, the discussions on the subject between Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British Ambassador, and Mr. Cordell Hull, the Secretary of State, have attracted considerable attention and caused a jumpiness in the silver market. It would, however, be unwise to assume that any far-reaching measures are contemplated. It is conceivable that Mr. Hull was deferring to the silver advocates to the extent of urging upon the British Government restrictions upon the sale of demonitized silver by the Government of India. But further than that, it is difficult to perceive upon what lines further steps could be initiated at Washington. Powerful opinion in the United States, as well as in Great Britain, is definitely opposed to all bimetallic proposals, which would merely result in the debasement of the gold standard and would undermine confidence and good faith. It is unlikely that America will promote any scheme which would go further with silver than has been proposed by the economic experts who have prepared the agenda for the forthcoming World Economic Conference. They rule out the use of silver, even in moderate amounts, as part of the reserves in central banks, saying that silver is unsuitable for such use because there is no fixed price at which it would be received by other central banks in settlement of balances on international account. We may make a few minor concessions to the notion that certain countries might withdraw the small denominations of banknotes and substitute silver subsidiary coins for them and that other countries might enlarge the use of subsidiary silver coins. But there is no strong body of opinion in Europe or the United States for the main proposals of the "silver Senators" and the Hull-Lindsay conversations may safely be regarded as providing little prospect of revolutionary projects. No doubt some preparation was made for the discussions to take place at the World Economic Conference. But silver will form a minor topic of discussion there. The Conference will probably consider whether, and if so by what methods, the marketing of silver by producers and currency authorities is susceptible of improvement. The question of developing new industrial uses for silver may also come under consideration. But the conviction expressed by the Hon. Mr. Patterson at the annual meeting of the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, that the law of supply and demand must be the final determining factor in the price of silver and that trade interests in China will best be served, not by a rise in the price of silver as such, but by a rise in the general level of commodity prices, will hold good at the Conference. Any action which will tend to raise the commodity price level must have a favourable effect on the price of silver.

Liverpool's Favoured Play

Sir James Barrie was recently selected as the favourite dramatist of the patrons of the Liverpool Playhouse, the oldest repertory theatre in Great Britain. Sir James proved an easy winner, his plays receiving 216 votes in a plebiscite specially taken to find the favourite works of playwrights. Galsworthy was second with 193 votes, and G. Bernard Shaw an indifferent third with a score of 78. Frederick Lonsdale, William Somerset Maugham and Noel Coward came next in order, the latter obtaining 41 votes. The most popular single play was Sir James Barrie's "Mary Rose," for which 65 people voted, followed by Mr. John Galsworthy's translation of the Norwegian play, "The Witch," which had two votes less. This Liverpool ballot may be taken as a fairly reliable indication of British taste in general. The voting covered a wide field, ranging from the drama of Great Britain to that of America and the Continent of Europe. Liverpool is one of Britain's greatest cities, a typical example of England's urban organization. Moreover, the plebiscite reached all sorts of people, for the plays voted for included such widely different kinds of dramatic art as the "Frogs" of Aristophanes, "The Silver King" and "East Lynne," while Shakespeare, Eugene O'Neill, Tchekov, Pirandello and A. A. Milne were not forgotten. It is surely significant that Sir James Barrie and Galsworthy should have so easily beaten all other competitors. The modern world is frequently said to be cynical, hard-boiled and disillusioned. But disillusioned, hard-boiled and cynical people do not choose Barrie as their favourite dramatist—nor, for that matter, Galsworthy, though he is not, like Sir James, a romantic. In spite of the misrepresentations of the screen, the popular stage and the sensational press, the fact of the matter probably is that Barrie's gentle and charitable outlook is far more characteristic of the temper of the age in general than is that of those snappy wisecracks in which the attitude of the modern world is often supposed to be crystallized.

Opium.

So far as one can tell from reports of all the Svatow-Chaochowfu district, including the Hakka part of north-east Kwangtung, there has been a complete absence of poppy growing this last winter and spring. This should certainly be chronicled and put to the credit of that mysterious centre of official life in China which we call the government authorities. For some years the planting of poppy has been forbidden, but it has been known that the law was promulgated for the express purpose of being broken: for only if there were the law to break could the district magistrates accept bribes for conniving in its breaking, and the military come along and reap a richer harvest for allowing it to remain after the various villagers had been brought before them for punishment. This year some real authority has been exerted both at Nanking and Canton to enforce the prohibition. It was incidentally such an authority as could combine these two governments, which co-operate on so little. The order went forth that for any opium produced in a district, the district magistrate would be held personally responsible, and that has been effective.

POACHING IS NOT WHAT IT WAS

By FRANK BONNETT

Poaching on the grand scale—which, as you may say, was quite a feature of country life during the latter half of the last century—is rarely heard of these modern days. Its decadence, perhaps, is not entirely, if at all, due to the improved morals of that class from which the poaching fraternity is recruited, but rather to the fact that the game is now far less worth the candle than it used to be.

OLD TIME POACHERS.

The old-time gang of poachers, who when they planned a raid on somebody's preserves really meant business, confined their attentions to those places where a bag that was worth while could be secured with practical certainty in a short space of time. That meant that whatever the objective—hares, pheasants, rabbits, or partridges—the conditions, including a plentiful supply of game, must be so favourable that the risk of getting caught was reduced to a minimum.

Not that these gangs, many of whose members were desperate fellows who would stop at nothing to save their skins, made no provision against the possibility of being detected in flagrant delicto. Plans were always carefully laid beforehand, and in addition to the actual working gang, which might consist of half a dozen, as many more might be employed as spies or watchers. It was the business of these confederates to locate the keepers and the village constable and to bring last-minute information as to whether the coast was clear or otherwise.

LAYING A FALSE TRAIL.

Sometimes the expedient of a false trail would be resorted to. A couple of spies, provided with pistols which could be easily concealed, would go to some place and fire a dozen shots which the keepers would be bound to hear. They would wait, perhaps, until they actually heard the keepers coming, and then, having fired another shot or two, would run for their lives. Having thus drawn the enemy's fire, so to speak, they would gain the nearest road and stroll along like respectable citizens making for the village alehouse.

The chief trouble for the poachers consisted in getting away with the swag. But an ingenious mind could devise many ways of smuggling this away, and a fast-trotting horse with a cartload of game might get many miles before the pursuers, usually on foot, could even discover which way it had gone.

DISPOSING OF SWAG.

To-day, although there is still plenty of poaching of a kind, there are few districts where game-preserving is carried on to such an extent as to make organised poaching a paying proposition. The law, too, as regards the receiving of stolen game, has been tightened, so that it is now very difficult to get rid of the spoil in bulk.

Most of the poaching that goes on nowadays is the work of the ne'er-do-well who will steal anything rather than work for the money to buy it, or of the genuine unemployed man who, dole or no dole, often finds it hard to resist the temptation of getting a good dinner for himself and family on the cheap.

MAKING OR BREAKING OUR ATHLETES

By F. A. M. WEBSTER

Great Britain has a host of potential Olympic champions and world's record breakers in embryo. In every part of England and Scotland, these boys are commencing their training for the annual school sports, and, one hopes, for the Public Schools Challenge Cups meeting, to be held at the White City Stadium on April 28 and 29.

Upon what the youngsters will learn and the way in which they will be trained during the next few weeks may depend their whole future athletic careers.

Great Britain needs first-class athletes very badly, as results at the Olympic Games and in other international contests have proved all too often. The way to produce our future world beaters is not to be found in the perpetuation of the thoroughly rotten Victor Ludorum system (under which a school's athletic champion is determined by the aggregation of points gained in different events), which has caused more than one promising boy who might have worn an Olympic olive crown to strain himself beyond repair by over-much competition before his real career had commenced.

School authorities should certainly revise the conditions of the Victor Ludorum award by placing a very strict limit upon the number of events for which a boy may enter.

There is a very definite and injurious reaction from too much competition and too much diversified success. Winning has seemed so easy at school, and when victory is delayed and found harder to achieve in wider fields the proud Victor Ludorum becomes bored and ceases to struggle seriously, whereas a single school victory, accompanied by a really sterling record, is usually an inspiration to honest endeavour to scale the heights of athletic success.

LIMITATIONS OF YOUTH.

Games masters entrusted with the athletic education of growing youngsters should force themselves to realise early the limitations of their pupils. A boy's schooldays should represent the period of his athletic career in which he is taught the entire technique of his event, for then his mind is still malleable. Training, as fully grown athletes understand the term, is usually unnecessary for, and often harmful to, adolescent athletes. In fact, most of the schoolboy's training should be done at what is termed "half-effort" for style.

If games masters will give their charges plenty of light work, combined with good technical instruction, and ten hours' sleep per night, they will find that many long-standing school records will be displaced at the end of even the one month's preparation for the sports.

The Very Idea!

ON KEEPING COOL

By Eddie "Frigidaire" Kelly.

WHAT with summer coming on, and all the B.Y.T.'s getting out their flannel pants, and the Hotels preparing chit-books by the thousand, it's about time we gave some hints on how to keep cool in the hot weather.

The first thing to do in the hot weather is to keep cool. Don't get hot and flustered when anything goes wrong, such as when the shroff and the girl friend call around at the same time.

Long experience has taught us that the best thing to do under such circumstances is to go out and have a refresher. Either the shroff or the G.F. will have gone by the time you get back.

Here are a few more simple rules:

(1). Don't do any work. This applies in Hongkong particularly to manual labourers, ricksha coolies, clerks, school-teachers, policemen, and journalists. We don't care so much about bank chairmen, tailors, stock-brokers and that class of people. Especially stock brokers. If they have apoplexy in Ice House Street, it's their own fault.

(2). Install a refrigerator and keep it well stocked with what you usually keep it well stocked with in the summer.

(3). Be careful about drink. Never drink anything between meals, or during the meal itself, except beer, whiskey, brandy, gin, vermouth, stout, wine and one or two other exceptions.

(4). Take plenty of exercise. An hour in the sun with the medicine ball may have most surprising results.

Or you might take brisk exercise by walking up the Peak every morning if you live in Kowloon, and swimming the harbour every day if you live on the Peak.

(5). Try getting fresh with a Peak slapper. The last one we did that to palmed us, scared us, dared us, and when we did, migoshi she frigidaired us.

MAD MELODIES.

The littlebird in the bush
Is such a lucky fellow;
His chest and back
Are as black as

His nose is orange yellow.
He sings a merry song,
Of twirls and twists and tweed-les;

And gobbles down
Without a frown,
All sorts of bugs and beetles.

He never has to wear
A stiff and starched collar,
He simply doesn't care
What happens to the dollar.

He's nothing else to do
But sit upon a tree,
And sing a merry love-song
To pretty Mrs. B.

His voice is rich and full
The sweetest of our song corps;
And when he strikes
A bit he likes,

He always gives an encore.
He doesn't care a dump
For drink or unemployment.
No taxes ever interfere with his enjoyment.

His trousers never bag,
At life he never rails.
The only things he likes

Are love and lots of snails.

A SOLEMN THOUGHT.

Do you know the Great Pyramid is 413 feet long?

No, I'd forgotten that, said Bernard. I'll make a note of it.

Well, it is, said Miss Nutty. Now multiply that by seven (the Mystic Number), and you get—well, you get what?

Bernard worked it out on his cuff.

2891, he announced. That's right, said Miss Nutty. Now subtract 1,000 and you get—1891, said Bernard. Very well, said Miss Nutty. And what year was Adolf Hitler born in?

Don't know, said Bernard. Don't know, said Dad.

Never heard of him, said Mums. Is he one of the new film stars, or what?

He's the Avenger, said Miss Nutty solemnly. He wasn't born in 1891 though—but I know it all hangs together somehow.

Good for you, said Bernard.

"I can't be there myself, so I thought I'd send some flowers instead."

NEW HOPE FOR RUBBER

CHANGE OF OUTLOOK IN HOLLAND

POSSIBILITY OF CONTROL

(Special to "Telegraph")

The Amsterdam correspondent of the Financial Times declares that the declaration of the Minister of the Colonies, Heer De Graaf, on April 15, together with the sudden change of mind of some of the leading Dutch anti-restrictionists, has brought the regulation of the rubber output within the sphere of possibility. It is hoped that the new Government taking office after the general election on April 26, will adopt a more active attitude than the present one. The newspaper, in a leading article, refers to the fact that a moderate rise in price would revitalize the industry without unduly burdening the consumers.

AN IDEAL LEVER.

The expansion of consumption would be an ideal lever which cannot be attained at the present, but between that, and the present official policy of laissez faire, is the possibility of an agreement for the control of production, which is obviously a necessary prelude to any consideration of active official intervention. Heer De Graaf on April 15 stated that he considers the compulsory restriction of the rubber production desirable in every respect as soon as a workable and efficient plan is available. Such a plan should also cover native production and be accepted by the British Government.—Reuter.

APPARENTLY ASLEEP WHILE DRIVING

COLLISION ON THE ISLAND ROAD

A recent collision on the Island Road in the vicinity of Stanley, between a car driven by Mr. A. Macfarlane and a public car, had a sequel in the Central Police Court this morning, when the Chinese driver of the public vehicle was summoned before Mr. Schofield for dangerous driving and failing to report the accident. Defendant admitted the second count and was fined $10. On conviction for dangerous driving, the defendant was fined $20 and was ordered to pay $12 damages to complainant. His Worship said it seemed that defendant had gone asleep in the car. This often resulted in fatal accidents. Inspector Alexander said Mr. Macfarlane was driving towards Repulse Bay. Defendant's car rounded a bend on the wrong side of the road. The collision caused damage to bumper, right mud-guard and tearing off the hub cap.

GARDEN ROAD INCIDENT.

Another incident in Garden Road, in which Mr. J. S. Howell, of Messrs. Dodwell and Company, was involved also came to his Worship's notice, when the Chinese driver of a hire car was charged with dangerous driving. Defendant pleaded guilty and was fined $25. Mr. Howell was driving down Garden Road. Below Upper Albert Road, defendant overtook a motorbus travelling uphill. Mr. Howell had to apply his brakes to avoid a collision. Defendant drove at a fast rate.

120 YARDS IN REVERSE.

Accusing another Chinese for driving in a manner dangerous to the public, Sergeant Harris, of West Point district, told the Ma-

SCOTSBORO CASE

"A FAIR TRIAL IMPOSSIBLE"

JUDGE ORDERS POSTPONEMENT

(Special to "Telegraph")

New York, April 17. The trial at Decatur, Alabama, of Charlie Weems, the second of seven negroes who are being re-tried after being sentenced to death for an assault upon two white women at Scotsboro has been indefinitely postponed. The Judge declared that local bitterness against the chief counsel for the defence, owing to his alleged aspersions on local citizens made a fair trial impossible at the present time.

The Judge suspended the death sentence on Patterson the first negro to be sentenced to death, pending an appeal.

TWO YEARS' CASE.

The Scotsboro case has attracted widespread interest. Originally heard in 1931 it has been dragging on ever since. The re-trial of Patterson commenced in November last and ended on April 9 with the passing of the death sentence once again.

The verdict was followed by a mass negro demonstration in New York when disturbances lasted for two hours.—Reuter.

MOSCOW TRIAL SENTENCES FORESHADOWED

to wreak their vengeance on the accused, but to spare the lives of his clients.

Counsel for Lobanoff, Lebedeff and Silbert, blamed Nordwall for teaching his clients to spy and he appealed to the Court to consider their youth.

MACDONALD'S COUNSEL.

M. Smirnoff, counsel for the accused MacDonald, who pleaded guilty originally, retracted his plea and then admitted various offences, greatly impressed the Court.

He pointed out that MacDonald was of humble birth and a cripple. He came to Russia ignorant of the country and met "the terrible Guseff" who was quite prepared to sell his country for few hundred roubles.

MacDonald, he said, had been taught to uphold the honour and interests of his firm and was told to collect information and did so.

It was unjust, he declared, to class the underlying MacDonald with Monkhouse and Thornton when the Court was deciding upon their verdict.

MacDonald had committed a serious crime, but he had given his word of honour never to repeat it.

M. Smirnoff concluded by hoping that MacDonald would be useful to the Soviet in future. The Court adjourned at 10.15 p.m. until 10 a.m. to-morrow.—Reuter.

Mak Ping, an employee of the Hongkong Electric Company since 1925, was brought before Mr. Wynne Jones at the Central Magistracy this morning, charged with the theft of brass and copper fittings from 1, Duell Street. He admitted the charge was sent to gaol for six weeks.

Magistrate that the defendant drove backwards for a distance of about 120 yards in Queen's Road West at a speed of 15 miles per hour. Defendant had a previous conviction for dangerous driving in October last year. A fine of $30 was imposed.

FLIER HOME AT LAST

CAPTAIN BERTRAM IN BERLIN

GIVEN A ROYAL RECEPTION

Berlin, Apr. 17. Capt. Hans Bertram, the German aviator received a royal reception from thousands of enthusiasts when he unexpectedly arrived here this afternoon from Athens.

He brought with him a letter from the Australian Prime Minister, stating his flight to Australia had strengthened Australo-German friendship.

Capt. Bertram had a chequered flight from Australia to Germany. He started off last December but was forced to descend and crashed at Sourabaya owing to a stowaway on board. He resumed his flight from Sourabaya on April 11, with the intention of reaching Berlin by the 16th, but an accident at Allahabad ruined his prospects of achieving this, although he managed a very fast trip and was only 24 hours behind schedule.

QUICK FINISH.

Capt. Bertram left Sourabaya at 3 a.m. on April 11, called at Batavia and then Alor Star in the Federated Malay States. He experienced a mishap at Allahabad on April 13, when the undercarriage of his machine struck a fence and caused delay in his departure.

However he left the same day at noon and flew to Jodhpur, thence to Aleppo and on to Athens.

His final hop was from Athens to Berlin and he accomplished the whole trip in six days.—Reuter.

ALLEGED ROBBERY AND ASSAULT

STORY OF ATTACK ON GIRL IN A BOAT

Yip Sam, arraigned on a charge of robbery with violence, and assault appeared at the Criminal Sessions this morning before Mr. Justice Wood (Acting, Puine Judge) and pleaded not guilty.

Mr. J. A. Fraser (Assistant Attorney General) for the Crown stated that the principal witness was a young boat-girl named Shek Tai-yau who on March 24 was alone in her boat off Shaikwan when accused came to the sampan and engaged her to take him to a fishing craft off the land. When they reached the boat accused said it was the wrong one and told the girl to row further out. This the girl did and as they drew near other boats anchored off-shore accused assaulted her and robbed her of a pair of ear-rings. The alarm was raised and accused jumped into the water. He was pursued by another boat and hauled aboard where his wrists were tied. The girl was found to be suffering from slight injuries.

In two statements made by the accused he stated that when he told the girl to row further out she refused and he slapped her face. He did not rob her.

The case is proceeding. The jury elected to hear the case were Messrs W. Goldenberg (former), F. Linenau, V. Treskin, D. Tolan, H. Ammann, G. Henderson and F. A. Machado.

DAY BY DAY NEWS IN BRIEF

IT IS FOOLISH AND INSOLENT TO IMAGINE THAT THE ART WHICH WE OURSELVES PRACTICE IS GREATER THAN ANY OTHER; BUT IT IS WISE TO TAKE CARE THAT IN OUR HANDS IT IS AS NOBLE AS WE CAN MAKE IT.—Ruskin.

Two black Chow dogs which bit a Chinese have been sent to the Ma Tau Slaughterhouse for observation. The victim was treated at the Kowloon Hospital.

Receiving head injuries through a fall in his kitchen, Pan Yau-chun, of Tang Lung Street, Wanchai, was sent to the Government Civil Hospital. His condition is not serious.

At the Criminal Session this morning before Mr. Justice Lindell (Puine Judge) Hung Ping-wo was sentenced to two years' hard labour for robbing a Chinese of $50 in money on March 27. He pleaded guilty.

Mrs. Mareto of 154, Johnson Road, in a report to the Police states that while her daughter was playing on the foot path outside the house, a chow dog, owned by Mr. Salto of 74 Hennessy Road, attacked the girl and bit her in the right cheek. The girl was immediately treated by a Japanese doctor, and later sent to the Government Civil Hospital. The dog was sent to Kennedy Town for observation.

VILLA SUFFER ECLIPSE

HOPE OF OVERTAKING ARSENAL GOING

SMART FULHAM VICTORY

London, Apr. 17. Anton Villa, the only challenger to the Arsenal for the league championship, conceded two very important points at Newcastle where they were beaten by three goals to one.

This means that the London team now require but two points from their remaining three matches to assure themselves of the honours which they last won in 1931.

The Easter Monday programme contained little in the way of surprises. Leeds accomplished a smart performance in defeating Everton at Goodison Park and Middlesbrough jumped out of the direct relegation zone by beating the Wolves.

The Spurs did well to take a point from Plymouth, while Fulham brilliantly won at Preston. Brentford, Exeter, Norwich and Reading all won in the third division, whereas Chester lost valuable ground to Rochdale and allowed Hull to take a useful lead. The results, as cabled by Reuter, were:

Chief Preventive Officer W. J. Buller said that on the night of April 12, together with a party of Chinese revenue officers, he boarded a private motor boat and proceeded out to the southern fairway. Shortly after arrival of the s.s. Lungshan, a parcel was dropped from the stern. Defendant's boat, which has no lights, seemed to be in the wake of the vessel, and drew near to the parcel, which was kept afloat by two football bladders. Defendant was seen to lay his hand on it. The parcel was later found to contain opium inside two waterproof sheets. The sack was clipped at the mouth with a metal fastener.

An announcement to this effect has been made by Mr. Wu To-chen, the Mayor of Greater Shanghai, who revealed also that the funds contributed came mostly from middle class and lower class citizens, whereas the wealthy people have given comparatively little.—Reuter.

CHINESE PULL OFF CUP "DOUBLE"

CIVILIANS' MISERABLE SHOWING

CAT AND MOUSE GAME IN LAI WAH CUP FINAL YESTERDAY

(By "Veritas")

THE least said or written about the Lai Wah Cup final played yesterday between the Chinese and Civilians, the better. SUFFICE to add that it was about the worst game ever seen in this competition, and for that matter, any other local tournament, and that the Chinese won by only six goals to one (I say "only" advisedly) was their funeral entirely.

Probably less than a dozen people seriously expected to see the Civilians win, but none anticipated such a pitiful display as they served up.

CAT AND MOUSE.

The Chinese played cat and mouse with them from the first to the last whistle; in fact the concluding stages were ludicrous, the winners evidently coming to the conclusion that serious football was not worth the candle and just tapped the ball one to the other quite aimlessly, but still neatly.

All the good football was confined to the first half and was the exclusive property of the Chinese. During the initial "45" they did play really excellent soccer. But it demoralised the Civilians who went from bad to worse.

There was not a weak link in the Chinese team. Or if there was it was not noticeable as the ineptitude of the opposition was sufficient to obscure shortcomings on the part of the winners.

The Chinese defence was hardly ever troubled and certainly never given any anxiety. Leung Wing-chui, Wong Moo-shun and Tong Kwan constituted an impenetrable half back line and a trio who spoon fed their forwards with ground passes.

FUNG BRILLIANT.

Fung King-cheung was brilliant at centre-forward, and the left wing composed of Ip Pak-wa and Tam Kong-pak streets ahead of the Civilians' defence.

Marques performed creditably in the losers' goal, and at times stood alone between the Chinese and goals. Strange and Duncan were variable at back and when Strange moved up to centre-half in the second half, he was even less useful.

Channings was not a success either as centre-half in the first moiety, or as leader of the attack in the later stages. Skinner, who came in for Bliss ran round the small circles in an endeavour to hold Ip Pak-wa and Duncan, although a little better in defence, revealed his old faults in constructive play.

B. Gosano was hopeless on the right wing giving his poorest showing of the season, whilst Shepherd was equally futile inside. S. Strange was a "go-getter," but was unsupported, and too often did the wrong thing at the wrong moment, such as dribbling when he should have passed and vice versa.

JOHNSTON LEFT BACK!

Johnston was given no opportunity at centre forward, but enjoyed himself when sent to left back. He had to shine there or the Chinese would have scored a couple of dozen!

Santos scored a clever goal in the first ten minutes and then faded out of the picture, largely thanks to being so inadequately partnered.

The Chinese were 5-1 to the good at half time, all being first rate goals, the product of high class football.

Fung King-cheung scored the first, Tam Kong-pak the second (from a penalty) and the third, whilst Ip Pak-wa registered the fourth and Fung the fifth.

After the Chinese had put on their first goal, Santos replied for the Civilians, although Johnston was yards offside at the time.

SIGN OF RELIEF.

The second half as featured only by desultory exchanges, one further goal being added by Tam Kong-pak.

Everybody heaved a sigh of relief when the final whistle blew, although none denied the Chinese the credit for winning that big Easter egg which I wrote about last Saturday.

BORDERERS BEAT THE NAVY

MULLANE AND SHIRRAS OUTSTANDING

The Borderers played convincing football to defeat the Navy in an important league tie yesterday, the soldiers making full use of their opportunities.

The Navy forwards were at fault and should have scored more than two goals. Worne was an effective attacker on the wing, but Langmead finished badly and was invariably in the wrong position.

A great display by Shirras was matched only by brilliant defensive work on the part of Mullane. The Borderers' attacking quintette were always the more lively than their opposites.

Forty and Harris scored for the Borderers in the first half, and Worne replied for the Navy, whilst Langmead succeeded in putting the teams on level terms with a terrific drive shortly after the interval. Thereafter the Borderers took the game into their own hands and made no doubt of the result through Mullane (from a penalty) and Harris.

The Navy were awarded 12 yards spot kick, but Smith repeated his achievement of the Shield and saved in remarkable style.

ITALIAN HEAVYWEIGHT IN COURT

Della Rovere claims Baiguera broke his managerial contract when

The Italian Boxing Federation has disqualified and fined Baiguera and has threatened to rescind his title unless his affair with Della Rovere is cleared up.

NO "OPEN" TENNIS TOURNAMENT AMERICA ABANDONS. THE IDEA

The Executive Committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, at a meeting last week decided by 15 votes to four to abandon for this year the proposed "open" tournament for amateurs and professionals.

The ostensible reason given for the abandonment was that no suitable date could be found.

During the meeting mention was made of the fact that the International Lawn Tennis Federation had barred such tournaments and that the Wimbledon authorities had banned all players competing in them.

ROUND BY ROUND DESCRIPTION OF A SPLENDID FIGHT

Ex-Stoker Reynolds, well remembered Hongkong boxer, unsuccessfully challenged Jack Hood for the welter-weight title of Great Britain at Birmingham last month.

The erstwhile navy man took the count in the ninth round for the first time in his career, but he put up a creditable display as the following special round by round account of the fight, described by a special correspondent of the Portsmouth Evening News, clearly shows.

Round 1.—Reynolds at once carried the fight to Hood, and early landed a heavy right swing to the jaw, again the Stoker rushed to close quarters and scored with both hands but Hood checked him the next time with a flush left to the jaw, and next brought the right heavily over to the head. Hood's left hand was again used to keep the Stoker at bay, and the round was even.

Round 2.—Reynolds chased Hood across the ring but without landing a punch, and when the Stoker bored in Hood held him off with the left, and brought the right over, but not with sufficient force to be damaging. Hood was showing his cleverness now, and his footwork was a special feature in steering clear of the Stoker's attacks. The Stoker missed badly with the right, and the round ended in favour of Hood.

Round 3.—Reynolds was first to attack and pushed Hood to the ropes. The Stoker made his best effort so far when he jumped in with a swinging left to the jaw, which both surprised and shook the champion, and, although the next time that the ex-Naval man tried to rush in he was stopped by a right to the face, it was his round after the best session of the fighting so far.

Round 4.—Reynolds beat Hood to the lead, and kept up a persistent attack. He was a real terror now, and was not to be denied, though once Hood drew his opponent's lead before connecting with a telling body blow. This was a fairly tame round, and was about even so far as honours were concerned.

REYNOLDS PUNISHED.
Round 5.—Reynolds appeared the stronger at this stage, and while Hood was clever he could not stop the Stoker's rushes. Hood once measured Reynolds with the left and came across with the right to the head, but the Stoker never slowed down, and was clearly out to make it the fight of his life. Hood boxed cleverly on the defensive near the end of the round, and the session ended in his favour.

Round 6.—Hood cleverly drew Reynolds' leads, and countered with both hands to the head. Reynolds still kept rushing in but Hood was having more success with his efforts to stop his opponent's boring, and this was easily the Birmingham man's round, Reynolds taking a good deal more punishment than was generally realized.

Round 7.—The first thing of note was a crisp right by Hood under Reynolds' heart. Hood was the master now, and preferred to make

REALLY HIT.

After the fight, Hood said: "This is the first time I have been really hit since 1928. I think that 10st. 7lbs. is still my best weight. I was not fit when I fought Vince Dundee and Lou Harvey. Reynolds is a very strong, game lad, with the heart of a lion. All he lacks is experience. I knew I was punching hard, but the blows seemed to have no effect upon him for a long time."

Reynolds, who bore surprisingly little trace of the combat, was autographing a boxing glove for charity when I entered his dressing-room, and he told me that he was beaten by experience. He did his best, and hoped that he had put up a good fight. Incidentally, he was the recipient of a large number of telegrams before the fight, and there were a number of Portsmouth people whom I recognised among the spectators.

Both boxers had weighed in at 10st. 7lbs. at two o'clock, and all talk about Hood being unable to make the weight was moonshine, he is still England's best welter, and Reynolds is a gallant runner-up.

JAPANESE DRIVE SUCCEEDS

AERIAL BOMBARDMENT

The Japanese and Manchukuo troops have now achieved their object of driving the Chinese forces across the Lun River (also called the Luan River).

The stiff Chinese resistance collapsed under heavy pressure, in which aeroplanes again played a large part. The Chinese on the coast were outflanked and had to withdraw rapidly.

Across the River.

Peking, Apr. 17.

Japanese troops are reported to have appeared at Shihpailiao, six miles north-west of Changli, and also near Funing.

Japanese troops entered Haiyang on Saturday and proceeded westward after a short interval.—Reuter.

Many Casualties.

Peking, Apr. 17.

Chinese reports state that Chinese troops in the Chinwangtao region were forced to withdraw when the enemy swooped down on them from three sides.

As they withdrew, they were bombed and machine-gunned. Terrible casualties were inflicted.—Reuter Morning Post Special.

Traffic Held Up.

Peking, Apr. 17.

It was learned yesterday that trains on the Peking-Mukden Railway are not proceeding further than Changli, 19 miles on the other side of the Lun River.

Later.

Trains are now not going further than Luanchow.

Chinese reports state that the Japanese last night reached Luanchow, seven miles from Changli, which town was subjected to a heavy air bombardment this morning.—Reuter Special.

Buildings Levelled.

Peking, Apr. 17.

Nantassu is reported to have suffered heavily in the fighting at Chinwangtao region. The buildings which the Japanese artillery did not touch, have been levelled by Japanese bombers which continually dropped bombs on the town.

Little further north, fierce fighting is reported to be raging at Luanyang.—Reuter.

Aerial Bombing Continuing.

Peking, Apr. 16.

The Japanese aerial bombing is continuing as fighting between the Chinese and Japanese troops develops.

An official communique to-night describes how seven Japan aeroplanes to-day flew over the Chinese position at the Kupeikow front and then coming further south, severely bombed the Red Swastika unit, dropping 30 bombs. Seven bombs registered hits, killing several of the members of the unit, including Mr. Chin Tuwei who was in charge of the relief work, and severely wounding a number of others, including Mr. Chen Chu-chi, well-known Shanghai charity worker.

According to the official communique, the Chinese fired at the Japanese aeroplanes with anti-aircraft guns, bringing down one and damaging another which managed, however, to make for the Japanese lines.—Reuter.

Army Statement.

Peking, April 17.

Reports from reliable sources in Mukden state that Japanese Army spokesmen declare that present operations outside the Lun River were undertaken with the sole object of destroying bases which the Chinese used for attacks on Japanese positions along the Great Wall.

If the attacks were started again from new sources, it was said, these bases would have to be destroyed also.

The Japanese Army admits that it found the initial Chinese resistance very stiff.—Reuter's Special.

CINEMA SCREENINGS.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES.

Because an actor, at some time or other, had done a particularly outstanding characterization in playing a certain role, he becomes "typed." He is afterwards in demand by directors, but usually only for similar characterization.

Noel Madison, is, perhaps the most "typed" actor in Hollywood. A picture embracing a gangster sequence would scarcely be complete without him. He has not been without a gun in his hand and a nutbrown suit of clothes on his back for three years and declares he has reached the point where he would scarcely know how to act without this equipment.

Madison portrays the role of a polite and suave criminal in "Mo And A Gal," the new Fox comedy-drama now playing at the King's Theatre, with Joan Bennett and Spencer Tracy. The story revolves about the adventures of a peppy young plain clothes man who falls in love with a girl and whose romance leads to the capture of a super-crook and killer.

"Handle With Care"

"Boots" Mallory, who was prominent in George White's "Scandals," the Zigfold "Follies" and "Hot Chai" can boast of one distinction, perhaps not enjoyed by any other player in Hollywood. She made her debut as a public entertainer in a Sunday School show. Now she will be known as "Boots" Mallory of the films.

Displaying an early ability with string instruments, she was much in demand in public and private entertainments and, at twelve, joined a girls' band in which she played the banjo. At the same time, she developed a marked talent in pencil and charcoal sketching. And her work in this field attracted the attention of no expert a person as Joseph Ball, the French artist. Later, she posed for a number of oil paintings by Ball and her face has been seen on many magazine covers.

When she was fifteen she went into vaudeville in a musical act with which she remained for several months. It was while she was singing in a New York night club that she came to the attention of George White who immediately gave her a place in his current show.

Miss Mallory's first film for Fox is "Handle With Care," in which she is co-starred with James Dunn.

It will be seen at the King's Theatre on Thursday.

TECHNOLOGY.

HONGKONG BOYS' SUCCESS AT MASSACHUSETTS

A pamphlet issued by the news service of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology sets out the names of students who have achieved high records in their studies. Among the honours list of third year students appears the name of Yau Too-chin, formerly of the Diocesan Boys' School, Hongkong.

The pamphlet points to a distinct improvement in the scholastic standing of undergraduates. The names of 725 students appear on the honours list.

When Health is Failing...

That is the time when courage and perseverance are highly necessary. To lose heart as well as health can only end in disaster. It may be hard to maintain optimism, especially if many remedies have been tried without avail. But this has been exactly the position with many people who owe their recovery to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

When the system has been drained of its nervous energy, when there seems to be scarcely any strength left for even ordinary requirements, it is this old and proved blood and nerve tonic that you should call to your aid.

Steve's eyes, however, turned away and searched the room speculatively. "I'm expecting my part-

Washington, Apr. 17.

After a keen debate suggesting that the Senate is becoming less docile to Presidential views, the Senate to-day rejected a proposal for the free coinage of silver at a ratio of sixteen to one with gold.

The proposal was expressly disapproved by President Roosevelt, but the majority in favour of rejection of the proposal was only 43 to 33.

Senator Robinson informed the Senate that President Roosevelt did not desire the proposal to go through pending the introduction of silver inflation legislation.

Senator Robinson also announced that President Roosevelt wanted all inflation amendments to the

FUNERAL OF MR. SIU UN

OLD-TIME PAGEANTRY

Old-time pageantry marked the Chinese funeral procession—one of the longest for some time—which passed through the city this morning on its way to Kennedy Town.
It headed an imposing three-tier catafalque borne aloft by 32 coolies and enclosing the mortal remains of Mr. Siu Un, described as "gentleman and merchant", who died last week at his residence at 70, Kennedy Road. Three bands were in the procession, playing both European and Chinese music, while the composite character of the obsequies was further marked by the participation of three groups of monks wearing the yellow, saffron and dark robes of the Lamaist, Taoist and Buddhist sects.
